North Street Residents Say Fire Protection Inadequate

By Karen L. Day

A North Street abutters group will be citing inadequate water supply for fire protection as their chief reason in protesting the proposed Northwoods Comprehensive Permit at the Zoning Board of Appeals' second hearing tonight. The hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the School Committee conference room, on the second floor of the School Offices, Whittier St. entrance.

The group's leadership, Olivier Goulet, Charles Cronin and Joseph Aurujo, all North St. residents, contend after investigating various public records, water supply is lacking. Goulet and Aurujo came to this conclusion on the basis of their experience as civil engineers.

According to the abutters, the Insurance Services Office (ISO) requires 6,000 gallons per minute flow at the intersection of North St. and River Road for adequate fire protection. It is the ISO which gives the town its fire rating, which, in turn, determines fire insurance rates.

The group obtained a copy of test results from the Department of Public Works, which stated only just over 2,000 gallons per minute would be available, while the ISO report concludes that about 4,000 gallons per minute would be available at the required pressure of 20 pounds.

Either way, abutters believe, fire protection is currently inadequate in the area—especially with the location of the Lawrence Regional Vocational Technical School—and the problem could only worsen with the added burden of the two comprehensive permit developments currently proposed for the street.

Robert McQuade, director of public works, does not agree with the group, insisting that the 2,000 gallons per minute reading is inaccurate. McQuade did the test himself, in relation to Doyle Lumber, and has commented that the reading gauge was broken, but for this specific test, he only needed to know that there was more than 2,000 gallons per minute, so the test was not redone.

As far as the Northwoods development is concerned, he feels confident that with an excess of 4,000 gallons per minute, safety can be assured as long as the Building Inspector's office requires fire walls dividing portions of the buildings and other construction-related fire protection measures.

"Whatever they're trying to prove," said McQuade, "they're relying on the wrong avenue to fight the condominiums....If multi-family is built and meets Building Inspector codes, we have adequate flow."

McQuade also admonished the group leadership for not discussing their concerns with him and relying on their own interpretation of certain documents. "If they are going to run around quoting things," he said, "I want them to have the facts."

The group has also stated, if their conclusions are true in this location, inadequate water supply for fire protection may be a town-wide problem, since 1972-73 recommendations made by town consultant Camp, Dresser & McKee have not even all been implemented.

According to McQuade, these are not fully accurate allegations. First of all, he commented, the ISO rates Andover at the second highest level, giving the town a "B-plus" in fire protection.

Additionally, virtually all recommendations made in the consultant's report have received funding and should be implemented in the next year or so. These plans include the laying of water pipes in Lowell St. and Greenwood Road, on Salem St. from South Main St. to Holt Road, and on Prospect St. The only recommendation that has not yet been financed is the laying of pipes along Andover St. up to Enfield Drive.

On a town-wide basis, the group is also concerned with pipes installed before 1955, because they are not cement lined. This can cause iron deposits to build on the pipe's interior restricting water flow. These deposits can also break off and be carried in the drinking water supply.

On this issue, McQuade agreed that these pipes are a problem, but that the new water system study will address this issue. A portion of the funding necessary to conduct the study was awarded by town meeting and more financing will be asked next year, said McQuade. The study will be completed by the end of 1988, and implementation can then begin. Specific study areas will be the replacement of the older piping in town and an update on town water needs based on development since the last Camp, Dresser & McKee study.

Glass Drive Will Be Saturday

The town glass drive for the month of June will be Saturday, June 20, in the town hall parking lot on Bartlet Street. Andover Recycling, Inc. volunteers will oversee the effort from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The separate compartments of the large collection bin will be conspicuously marked so clear and green glass will not be mixed. Brown glass will not be collected.

Bottles and jars do not have to be washed to be ready for recycling, but in warm weather rinsing may help keep wasps and bees away. Labels do not have to be removed.

To Distribute Collaborative Information

Within the next two weeks, all Andover residents should be receiving information about the Andover/Lawrence Collaborative School Project, a school proposed to serve elementary students from both communities. The Project's first newsletter will be distributed Thursday to subscribers of the Andover TOWNSMAN as an insert; non-subscribers will receive the letter during the next week in a bulk mailing, which will also contain advertisements. The Project newsletter will also be made available in public locations in town.

Recycling Sale Intake Continues

Andover Recycling Sale items will be received at old town hall Friday from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. The last intake scheduled before the Saturday, June 27, sale will be Thursday, June 25, from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Jeanie Powers, intake chairman last Saturday, reports that two chests of drawers, some fine collectibles, several small television sets and numerous other items were recently received.

For information on the sale or auction, call Mrs. Thomas J. Swift, Mrs. Paul Hollenbeck or any other Andover Recycling volunteers whose telephone numbers are listed on the recycling calendar.

Planners Alter Schedule

The Andover Planning Board will not hold a meeting June 23. In July they will meet on the first and third

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

All children's auto restraints must now meet rigid federal safety standards. Even the safest auto restraint must be used correctly if it is to provide protection. The baby must always be secured in the restraint and the restraint itself must always be secured to the car with an adult lap belt. When shopping for an auto restraint, ask to see the instruction booklet and be sure the restraint will fit properly in your car. If possible, try it out before buying. Most restraints made today are the "convertible" type - that is, they can be used with infants and then be converted for use with older babies and young children.

There is a wonderful selection of baby furniture at TINY TOTLAND. We have everything from pacifiers to strollers. Over 80 cribs on display. Wall decor and lamps. Babies toys for all ages... everything from "heaven to seven". Ask about our free lay-a-way plan. Delivery service. Stop in soon, at TINY TOTLAND, 1111 Elm St., Manchester, N.H. Low Income Legislation Cuts Costs

Editor's note: Many different meanings have been attached to the phrases "affordable housing" and "comprehensive permit." In this two-part series, the TOWNSMAN will examine the impact of the state-wide affordable housing initiative on Andover. Part One will address the laws, regulations and financing programs relative to affordable housing. Next week, Part Two will discuss the comprehensive permit process, specific petitions currently filed, and the town's own affordable housing initiatives.

"The anti-snob zoning law, "Section 40B" and "Chapter 774" are the three most commonly used phrases. They refer to the state's requirement that communities dedicate 10 percent of their housing units to low and moderate income residents. In addition to this requirement, these state regulations set up the steps in the comprehensive permit process, which allows a developer to sidestep some local regulations.

As of the 1980 census, Andover had only 445 units, or five percent, thus making it a target for affordable housing development. With few pieces of land that can support a large development—and stay within local regulations—the comprehensive permit has also become a fact of life in town.

In 1985, Gov. Michael Dukakis created the Massachusetts Housing Partnership (MHP) to provide for the production of safe housing which would be affordable to households that would not normally be able to obtain such housing without assistance.

"Affordable housing," said MHP Director Joseph Flatley, "is connected to the state's future economic health." If non-management level employees cannot find affordable housing they will seek employment in areas with a lower cost of living. Thus, the state has made the production of affordable housing a paramount initiative.

"Most often, the first step in the affordable housing development process begins with the developer, who purchases or options a piece of land for development. If a proposal which meets all local by-laws is created, the developer goes through normal local channels (i.e. Planning Board) for development approval, and may directly apply to the state agency in charge of funding assistance for the particular type of housing he is interested in building.

If the design of the development violates local regulations or zoning by-laws, the developer must file a comprehensive permit application to the local zoning board, which decides whether or not to allow a development—despite its violations—on behalf of all town boards and officials who would normally have a say. This intricate process will be discussed in greater detail next week.

Whether a developer meets all local regulations or is granted a comprehensive permit allowing the development, he has a number of state-run programs under which he may obtain funding—some for resident-owned houses or condominiums, others for rental units.

The MHP Board designated the state's Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) as the primary administrative agency for the distribution of funds for, and implementation of, approved programs. In 1986, approximately $200 million in below-market interest rate mortgages was offered by the Massachusetts Housing and Finance Agency (MHFA). The MHP Fund also offered $20 million in funds available to reduce the finance costs to the low-to-moderate-income homebuyer, and another $5 million in Community Development Action Grants (CDAG) was provided to construct sewers, roads and other infrastructure necessary for housing development.

"One of the major initiatives of the MHP has been the Homeownership Opportunity Program (HOP) which offers affordable housing to first-time home buyers. These may be single-family homes, townhouses or condominiums. Most developers currently seeking to build affordable housing in Andover have chosen to obtain funding through this program.

HOP Director Tom Gleason, estimating the median cost of a home in Massachusetts at $170,000, commented that HOP allows like homes to be purchased "for about half that cost."

For HOP funding through the MHFA, the state requires that at least 25 percent of the units be priced at $78,500, so that they are affordable to low income households. These buyers must have an income between $17,000 and $25,000.

The remaining 75 percent of the units do not have pricing guidelines, but if MHFA mortgages are provided to the homebuyers of some of these units, they must be priced at $110,000 or less.

For these moderate-rate units, if any are included in the development, the buyer must have an income of less than $35,000 for a household of one, or $40,000 for a household of two, with an additional $1,500 allowed for each additional dependent.

In addition to the below-market rate pricing of these units, both low and moderate income buyers may also receive a mortgage write-down of up to three percentage points below the current mortgage interest rate from the MHP Fund.

The interest rate will increase slowly, rising one percentage point every three years until the tenth year, when it peaks. This interest rate will be charged for the remainder of the mortgage period.

Prices on the overall project can be skewed by the developer so that he may realize an acceptable profit—even though he is charging below-market rates for some of the units.

The low/moderate units will remain affordable through deed restrictions. An owner cannot rent the property for profit and must reside in the unit he purchases. The owner is also restricted in two ways from receiving more than a reasonable profit.

Low and moderate income units are sold for between five and 30 percent below the unit's actual market value. If the first owner of a low or moderate income unit purchases it for 10 percent below the unit's market value, he can sell it for no more than 10 percent below the market value at the time of sale. In addition, the unit can only be sold to a buyer who meets the required income guidelines.

When a unit is sold, funds used to reduce the interest rate on the affordable homes must be repaid to the MHP Fund. The seller is allowed to keep 80 percent of the appreciation on the unit they are selling, and return the other 20 percent to the MHP Fund. These monies are then recycled and used for other affordable housing developments.

$78,500

Two-bedroom Townhouses or condominiums in NEW Andover developments. Must meet state's low/mod income guidelines for mortgage with 5 percent interest rate.

"In addition to the HOP Program, there are two funding sources for rental development as well.

SHARP (State Housing Assistance for Rental Production) is a subsidy loan program that requires at least 25 percent of the development to be affordable.

Permanent financing and construction funding is provided through the MHFA with proceeds from the sale of tax-exempt bonds. SHARP funds are administered by the EOCD, and are used to write-down the "effective cost" of interest payments on the MHFA loans to as little as five percent for up to 15 years.

The amount of SHARP monies awarded is based on the difference between the cost of producing the development and the expected market-rate rents that could be charged for the type of unit in the particular location.

These funds are a loan, with expectations that a development will become self-sustaining within 15 years. After the 15 year period has ended, SHARP funds are either repaid to MHFA or are used for the benefit of the low and moderate income households in the development.

SHARP funds are awarded in two ways. The MHFA holds periodic competitions among developers, evaluating their proposals by testing them against selection criteria. SHARP funding may also be awarded by the MHP to projects sponsored by local Housing Partnerships (like the newly created Andover Housing Partnership).

In order to even be considered for SHARP funding, a proposal must first meet the MHFA Threshold Requirements and then the SHARP Statutory Requirements. If these minimum requirements are met, SHARP proposals will be evaluated against the three SHARP Selection Criteria areas.

The low and moderate income units must be marketed toward holders of either State Chapter 707 or Federal Section 8 Certificates. This enables individuals to pay between 25 and 30 percent of their total income toward rent. If units cannot be rented to these certificate-holders, the EOCD provides back-up assistance.

After SHARP funds are awarded, proposals are put through the MHFA financing process. The developer submits a formal mortgage application and the MHFA conducts an in-depth underwriting review. If a proposal passes through this phase, it receives a recommendation to the MHFA Board for a loan commitment.

The MHFA then raises funds through the sale of tax-exempt bonds and these funds are given to the developer once any conditions that were placed have been met by the developer. Closing is expected to occur within nine months of the SHARP award.

"The second funding program offered for affordable rental housing from the MHP is TELLER, or Tax Exempt Local Loans to Encourage Rental (Production).

Instead of applying to the state for funding, developers interested in the TELLER Program make a proposal to the local housing authority in the community where the development is to be built. The housing authority then holds a public hearing on the proposal.

If the proposal is accepted by the housing authority, it then applies to the MHP to purchase tax-exempt bonds, sold at an interest rate up to two points below average.

In order to qualify for TELLER, 20 percent of the housing must be for low income residents, for those who have an income no greater than 50 percent less than the state median income. The remaining 80 percent have no set pricing or income limits.

About Our People

On the Moon and Under Water: Engineer's Designs Have Been Everywhere

By Melissa M. De Meo

When William Elmer looks at the moon, he can say that a part of himself is up there.

The 86-year-old Andover resident and retired engineer designed the reflector used in the walking-stick camera Neil Armstrong left on the moon during the Apollo-11 mission.

"I have a light on the moon now," Elmer says with a grin. He was asked to design the reflector by a Bedford optical company that was given a lot of government commissions.

Elmer has also left his mark on earth. In 1944, when he was a section engineer in an Ohio division of Westinghouse Electric Corp., he redesigned the company's street lights that are now an industry standard and used worldwide.

Elmer takes his accomplishments lightly. After all, he says, it was mostly common sense that produced them. "The streetlights they used to use didn't direct the light toward the pavement in the most efficient way. They needed a compound curvature so that the light would hit the street in an oblong area uniformly."

The OV-20 oval horizontal-burning mercury street luminaire is the extended name for the lights Elmer and his crew of five engineers designed.

The mathematics they used in their project became the nucleus of Elmer's book, The Optical Design of Reflectors.

"I finished writing it in 1974, but no one would publish it," Elmer said. "Finally they woke up, and John Wiley and Sons published it in '80."

It was a risk worth taking since the book was bought by major optical companies and studied by designers everywhere. And that means everywhere.

"I have a letter — I have it framed, too — from a post graduate lighting engineer in Peking, China, who heard about the book and wondered where he could get it. Well, I wrote back and told him where he could find it."

Answering the student's question was not the last Elmer heard of him though.

"(A colleague) who happened to go to China told me he had been talking with a post-graduate student who talked about a book written by an American." The American was, of course, Elmer. "Of all the remarkable coincidences, William Elmer stands outside the Rose Cottage on Chestnut Street, which he has rented for 15 years. Revolutionary War Major-Gen. LaFayette stood on the same spot in 1825 when he delivered a speech to Andover residents.

for him to have talked about my book with the same person who had written me a letter asking about the book. In China!"

The book traveled almost as far west as it did east. When Elmer telephoned the Deep Sea Power and Light Corp. of Los Angeles to promote his book, he was told that the company already had a copy. What's more, its engineers had studied every page of it in their design of the underwater lighting equipment Robert Ballard used to photograph the submerged Titanic.

He sits back in a roomy armchair in the house he and his wife, an Andover native, rent. It's the Rose Cottage, 2 Chestnut St., where French Gen. LaFayette stopped for a hot toddy in 1825. The Elmers moved to the house more than a century and a half after LaFayette's visit. Calendars left by previous occupants hang from doors and walls on the first level. One is from 1960; another is open to a page bearing the date March, 1937. They are stopped in time, like the house itself. It is a wistful kind of immortality.

Elmer is just back from his 65th reunion at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he got his bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering in 1922. There were about 25 alumni there, the last of the largest MIT class on record — about 1,200.

"It was kind of sad," Elmer said. "We won't be having any more reunions after this one, you know, because they're all 86, 87 now."

Elmer's life at MIT wasn't all transformers and optical formulas. For a while, the young Elmer thought he might like to be an artist. He was art editor of Voodoo, the institute's unshakeable comic magazine. Having fizzled out twice, it was just starting another life when Elmer got to his reunion.

He decided to stop by the old Voodoo office, and found that it wasn't there anymore.

"But across the hall, I saw another office full of papers and activities. There was a man sitting there, and would you believe? He was the editor of the revived Voodoo. And he knew of me."

After college, Elmer set up an art studio in Boston for seven years. He did charcoal portraits and sketches, one of which was recently discovered by a friend's wife and sent to him in its frame.

It's a picture of a woman in an almost surreal living room sitting across a table from a mythical-looking animal. Each stroke is measurably precise, as if it were an engineering design. He says he's going to send it to Voodoo's board of managers, who have been asking for some of Elmer's old pictures.

In 1929, Elmer closed up his studio and pursued the career for which he had been trained. He was made head of a division of the Boston Edison Company. While there, he invented a metal-street-light head, which left the archaic — and expensive — porcelain heads behind.

After he left Boston Edison in 1942, Elmer spent two years in Westinghouse's Sharon, Penn., division designing the Mark 31 torpedo mine used in World War II.

Elmer put his optical know-how to good use when he became a reflector design consultant in 1960.

Since Elmer has retired his drafting boards, he has taken up something else — music. He has composed about 37 pieces of music on the piano and says that's been keeping him busy for a while.

For a while. Right now, Elmer's in Thornton, N.H., running a 100-acre farm called Greenspires. He'll stay there for the summer and raise birch and a few fir trees, and maybe he'll be back in time to see the roses bloom on the trellis in front of his Andover house. He might as well: he just finished tying them there.

Elected To Cum Laude Society

Phillips Academy graduating seniors from Andover initiated into the Cum Laude Society at commencement ceremonies on June 7 are: Michael D.V. Coco, Standish Circle; Michael T. Cox, Haverhill Street; Ian L. David, Elm Street; Meredith R. Gardner, Alden Road; Mark D. Hessman, Rolling Ridge Road; Bernard J. Koh, Appletree Lane; Shawn W. Kravetz, Whispering Pine Drive; Sarah C. Merrill, High Street; Deborah K. Palmer, Karlton Circle; Jon R. Pedicino, Juniper Road; Herbert Han-Pu Wang, Charlotte Circle.

The Cum Laude Society was founded in 1906 to establish in American secondary schools an honor organization to recognize and encourage scholarship. Only students who have high scholarship and good character are eligible for membership.

In February the Andover chapter elects to the society those members of the senior class who have achieved and maintained high scholarship during the whole of their upper middle years and the fall term of their senior year. Those students who have achieved and maintained high scholarship during their senior year are elected in May.

Andover Students Perform

Susan James and Lori Nelson of Andover, from the piano class of Barbara R. Sands in Tewksbury, entered the National Guild Auditions on June 10 at the University of Lowell. They successfully passed the requirements of a 10-piece memorized program. These auditions are sponsored by the American College of Musicians and are held annually across the United States.

They are professionally judged and each student-winner receives a full evaluation, a certificate and a pin.

Susan and Lori recently performed in the music festival at the university and were chosen to play in the Showcase Recital in April.

Recovering from the Ashes

Kathy Smeltzer watches her new house being lowered onto its foundation. Her husband, Eddie, sitting on the windowsill in the background, talks with neighbors and friends who gathered to watch the house go up. The Smeltzer's 12-year-old daughter Tina, above right, says the first thing she's going to do when she gets in the house is run to her bedroom.

6 Months after Fire, Family's New Home Arrives

By Melissa M. De Meo

"Who gets the keys?" asked the man in the blue shirt, dangling a key chain from his forefinger and thumb.

Eddie Smeltzer, leaning against the wall of a house, obliged. And he couldn't have been happier.

Ever since Smeltzer's house burned down in December, he and his wife and two children have lived, first in a trailer, then with relatives in Boxford. Last Thursday, the family's new home arrived, in two pieces, on wheels.

"We decided on a modular home since the land is all paid for," said Kathy Smeltzer, checking her watch anxiously. "I gotta be at work at 4. I won't even get to see my house put up."

The house was supposed to arrive at 120 North Main Street the day before, but got delayed. It was supposed to come at noontime Thursday, but the crane got lost in Lawrence. Finally, at about 2 p.m., it came up the street on two flatbed trucks.

Twelve-year-old Tina Smeltzer ran down the street to meet it. "I seen what they (modular homes) look live on TV, but not in person. It was shocking."

Neighbors and friends, some of whom took time from work, clustered around the house next door to watch the Smeltz-ers' new house go up. A few had cameras. Passengers in cars and schoolbuses ogled the scene as if it were from the pages of Dr. Seuss.

The first thing Tina says she's going to do when she steps in the new house is run to her bedroom — her own bedroom. Since April, Tina and seven other people have been sharing her grandmother's four-bedroom house.

Within 24 hours, the Smeltzers were homeless. Their two-family house on North Main Street was gutted by fire Dec. 9, far left. In May, it was torn down by a three-man crew, center. Last week, the family's new modular home arrived on two trucks and was put on the same site as the old house. Photographs are by, left to right, Susan O'Neill, Karen Day and Jerry Bligh.

Namkung Wins Watson Scholarship

Susan Namkung, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Yen Namkung, 99 Haskell Road, Andover, has been awarded a major scholarship under IBM's Thomas J. Watson Memorial Scholarship Program.

Namkung, a senior at Andover High School, will receive her award for studies at Wellesley College where she plans to study law.

She is a member of the high school tennis club and has studied piano for ten years.

The Watson program, named for IBM's founder, provides four-year undergraduate scholarships to outstanding students who are children of active, retired or deceased

IBM employees in the United States. Winners are chosen on the basis of test scores, academic record and extracurricular achievement.

The awards range from $8,000 to $32,000. Established in 1957, the Watson program has provided more than 3,900 students with scholarships totalling $24 million over the years. The college scholarship service of Princeton, N.J., administers the program for IBM.

Piano Students Qualify

Students from the classes of Kate Benson and June Persing have successfully completed requirements for membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians, sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers of the American College of Musicians.

The guild, headquartered in Austin, Texas, selected Elizabeth Bradshaw of Salisbury, Ct., to adjudicate. She is a magna cum laude graduate of Brooklyn College and has studied at Tanglewood and the Eastman School of Music. She is the elementary piano chairman for the eastern division of the Music Teachers National Association.

Each student prepared a program of three to 13 memorized compositions, selected from the four periods of music. They received a constructive evaluation from the adjudicator and were awarded a certificate and membership pin.

More than 100,000 piano pupils across the nation participate in this annual event held in 700 music centers. University of Lowell is the center for the Merrimack Valley.

The local students are Amanda Firicano, Patricia Har, Colleen Reid and Emily Sedgewick, students of Kate Benson.

Also, Sefany Andreadis, David Bernstein, Lorian Buehler, Elana Climo, Aaron Cooper, Sara Cooper, Sharon Hastings, Jane Kim, Tracy Kindred, Christopher Kyle, Elizabeth Kyle, Rachel Levine, Erich Ludwig, Karen Maxwell, Rebecca Poulo, Jennifer Preisig, Sarah Ruderman, Alaina Schroeder, Melissa Schroeder, Melissa Slater, Jenifer Sonntag, Karin Sonntag, Lori Stephenson, Lenore Stubenhaus and Erika Vowinkel, students of June Persing.

Art teachers Delores Dunning (South School) and Sally Wolfe (West) review logos with South students Jin Yi Joo and Ken Paquette.

Collaboration Is Key

The key word was collaboration Wednesday morning, June 10, when art teachers Delores Dunning and Sally Wolfe from Andover's South and West Elementary schools, respectively, worked together at West Elementary to construct a display for Andover student entries in the Andover/Lawrence Collaborative School Project's "Design a Logo" contest.

More than 400 first-through sixth-grade children from the town's four elementary schools submitted entries; the artwork was fastened to two eight-by-four-foot panels to create a paper-doll pattern designed by Wolfe.

The logos were built upon the theme "working together," the philosophy at the heart of the collaborative project. Through the project, officials and residents of Andover and Lawrence will plan and build a new jointly run and staffed elementary school that will serve students in both communities.

Students from Lawrence schools assembled their own 1,000 entries on an identical double-panelled display Monday at the Frost School. The Andover and Lawrence panels will be joined to form one free-standing kiosk, which will then be displayed at alternating public locations in Andover and Lawrence.

A panel of professional judges will rate the logos on their creativity and appropriateness to the theme. Andover logo designer Joan Elis will meet with winning students from both school systems for a design session, during which they will create the project's permanent logo.

Studies show the Atlantic Ocean is widening by 6/10ths of an inch a year.

Western Roundup

By Carrie Lumley

Another school year is nearing completion at West Junior High School. The freshman class is back to work finishing their subjects and taking finals after attending the most spectacular social yet. Everyone was dressed in their best. Even the gym looked like a fancy ballroom, well, at least close to one. Everyone enjoyed an outrageous night and left with great memories.

The ninth-grade yearbook is in its final copying stages. The tremendous effort put into it will show when the students receive them. To many, this will serve as the remembrance of their ninth grade year which was awesome. Even though it was a great year and will be missed by all, students are very anxious for its termination.

On June 9, ninth graders went to the high school for orientation while sixth graders from West and Sanborn schools visited the junior high. Many students at West Junior High School are looking forward to the change in schools and accepting more responsibilities to earn more freedom. On the other hand, some are unsure of their feelings about leaving since many have friendly ties with their teachers and are reluctant to give that up. All in all, it is an experience to be taken in stride and, hopefully, a positive one for all.

Finally, the last three assemblies of the year for student recognition in both academics and athletics are occurring presently. The seventh and eighth grade class had theirs last week and ninth grade is scheduled for June 22. Honors are given to those who excelled in sports or physical fitness along with those who have surpassed scholastic limits. Within the final week of the 1986-87 school year, everyone is pulling together to end the year succeeding in the motto "Excellence in Everything" and maintaining happy memories in the process.

Friends Theme For Graduation

"Let's Be Friends" was the theme of the 18th annual graduation program at St. Robert's Country Day School Nursery last week. Fifty-seven boys and girls were awarded bachelor of rhymes degrees before 250 parents, friends and guests. Rev. Frederick Collins, pastor of St. Robert's and executive director of the nursery school, gave the "commencement" address.

Helen P. Keegan, school director, presented honorary degrees to parents Dolores Bishop, Elizabeth Brown, Russell Leonard, Julie and John Ardini, Karen and Dan Detterman, Suzanne Reynolds, Deborah Morrison and Diane Trombly for "outstanding service" to the school during the past two or more years.

A "friendship tree" was planted on the church grounds from the nursery schoolers. New parents board members were honored at a supper fol-

Electric Rates Reduced

League

Massachusetts Electric Company and Massachusetts Attorney General James Shannon recently agreed to a $16,750,000 reduction in Mass. Electric's rates, the third and largest rate decrease negotiated since Mass. Electric's last rate increase in 1982.

The rate reduction reflects the tax savings ordered by the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities on June 1, 1987, plus an additional rate reduction attributable to the strong sales growth in Mass. Electric's territory, declining interest and capital costs and the company's continued attention to strict cost control.

Edward E. Mulligan, president of Mass. Electric, stated, "The agreement reached today represents a comprehensive settlement on Mass. Electric's rates following a thorough investigation by Attorney General Shannon's office. Today's agreement, together with our prior rate settlements, have produced rate reductions of more than $31 million since our last rate increase approximately five years ago. These settlements have produced a solid record of reasonable rates for our customers. They also have allowed us to provide quality service with the lowest rates among the major utilities in Massachusetts. We are happy to continue this record with the agreement reached today."

The rate reduction, applicable to the company's major rate classes, will become effective after July 1 and must be approved by the Department of Public Utilities. It is expected that typical residential Mass. Electric customers using 500 kilowatt-hours of electricity will see a reduction of approximately $1 in their monthly bill.

San Crandall, legislative action.

Annual membership dues were raised to cover costs at all levels. Dues can be waived partially or entirely. No one is excluded from membership because of inability to pay.

The league is a nonpartisan political organization whose purpose is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government and to act on selected governmental issues. To become a member, contact membership chairpersons Linda Tommasino, Messina Drive, or Kathy Walsh, Patriot Drive. Membership is open to all voters, male and female.

New Group Puts On 'Pi rates'

There's a new little theater group in Essex County, the Methuen Young People's Theater, and it's based at the world-famous Methuen Memorial Music Hall. Their first performance, the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta "Pinafore," was well received last September with the proceeds going to the Organ Hall.

This year's production will be "Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan. When the advertisement for the first casting call appeared, more than 30 young people, including those who "gave it a whirl" last year, answered. Rehearsals will begin June 20 at 9 a.m. at the Methuen Memorial Music Hall and will continue on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. and Saturdays at 9 a.m.

Mrs. Ellen Meuse is producer, Margot Warner, director, and Mrs. Ellen Stahle, pianist.

An evening performance is planned for September 12 and an afternoon performance for September 13. The proceeds will benefit the Methuen Memorial Music Hall to help defray some of the expenses due to the recent flood which left five feet of water in the basement and did damage to the great organ.

Joe Gillam of Andover, one of the leads in last year's performance, will participate again this year.

Organ Recital

Leo Abbott will present a recital on the Old Boston Music Hall organ at the Methuen Memorial Music Hall in Methuen on Wednesday, July 1, at 8 p.m.

Abbott is a graduate of the Boston Archdiocesan Choir School of Music. His teachers include Theodore Marier, George Faxon, Clarence Watters, Julius Chaloff and Flor Peeters. Abbott has won first prize in competitions at the University of Michigan, Coral Ridge, Fla., and Fort Wayne, Ind. He was one of the two American finalists in the Grand Prix de Chartres in 1984. Abbott holds the Fellowship and Choir Master certificates of the American Guild of Organists and is music director and organist at Boston's Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

The program consists of Symphony No. 4 in f minor, Op. 13, Charles-Marie Widor; Prelude et fugue sur le nom d'Alain, Op. 7, 1942, Maurice Durufle; Vingt-quatre Pieces en Style Libre, Op. 31 (1913), Louis Vierne; Symphony No. 2 in E major, Op. 20 (1902), Louis Vierne; Sonata Eroica, Op. 94 (1932), Joseph Jongen.

Edward Francis Searles, who was born on July 4, 1841, in Methuen, commissioned Henry Vaughan, famous architect and designer, in 1899 to design a concert hall for the purpose of housing the organ. The design, construction and decoration took ten years.

The Music Hall is located on Broadway (Route 28) in Methuen.

Organist Richard Konzen will perform Wednesday, July 8.

Yankee thrift is as legendary as the New England penchant for owning goods that last.

Shop in Newburyport and you'll find much more than unusual gifts for the folks back home. You'll discover great prices on things you actually want, need and can use with pride for years to come — clothes, jewelry, art, antiques, leather products, woodcrafts, ornamental brass items and more.

Compare the prices on brand-name appliances, electronics and more at all four convenient shopping areas — the Route One Traffic Circle, Storey Avenue, The Tannery, and of course, the historic downtown district. Great shopping, fine dining and quaint old inns — it's the stuff of Yankee dreams.

Spend like a Yankee in Newburyport, and you'll live like a king at home.

For a brochure or information on accommodations, contact the Chamber of Commerce, 29 State Street, Newburyport, MA 01950 or call (617) 462-6680.

Chamberlayne

Kathleen M. Degnan, 543 Massachusetts Avenue, North Andover, received an associate degree at the 89th Commencement exercises of Chamberlayne Junior College in Boston held at Trinity Church in Copley Square.

Helene Levenson of Newton, a professional interior designer, was the principal speaker. She told the graduates, "If you are afraid to fail, you will not succeed. Your failures will not count, your successes will."

Fire

"It's been terrible," she said with a kid's succinctness.

The Smeltzers hope to be able to move into their house this week, as soon as the electricity and plumbing are hooked up. It took only a few hours to set up the house, which came from a Nashua, N.H., company.

"Now watch — the cable will break," said an observer, as the crane lifted half of the house into the air.

"Don't even say that," Eddie Smeltzer said. Luck is not something the Smeltzers seem to have a lot of. First, an electrical fire destroyed the house on an icy Dec. 9, leaving the Smeltzers and their tenants homeless. They had just pumped $25,000 into a new roof, ceiling and siding. Then, while the Smeltzers were living in a trailer a few yards from the gutted house, someone tried to set it on fire again.

Later on, after the remains had been torn down and a hole had been dug for a new foundation, a cement truck fell into it.

Do they think the land is jinxed?

"I don't like to think that way," says Kathy Smeltzer.

Time and temperament have lessened the impact of the fire, so that the Smeltzers are almost nonchalant when they talk about it.

"We went through the house after, and there was nothing we could save. What water didn't damage, smoke did," Kathy Smeltzer said as if it were an ordinary thing.

"It happened: what're you gonna do?" And she shrugs her shoulders and leaves for work.

The art of quilting has been practiced for thousands of years. Soldiers of the Middle Ages wore quilted coats and hoods under their armor.

Strawberries

The pick-your-own strawberry season starts around June 15 and lasts through mid-July.

Choose berries that are firm and glossy with 75-100 percent red color and bright green caps attached.

Do not remove caps or wash berries until you plan to use them. Place loosely in shallow containers so air can circulate. Refrigerated berries should stay fresh about two days.

Housing

Should the developer build moderate-income housing rather than low-income, 40 percent of the units must be moderate. Residents of these units can have an annual income of up to 60 percent of the state median income level.

Either way, all units are locked-in to being rental for a period of 15 years, and the EOCED offers rental assistance to low and moderate income residents living in units with at least two bedrooms.

"With the passage of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, some developers are also entitled to tax exemptions, provided that the development goes on line by December 1, 1989. Some SHARP Program users and all TELLER participants are eligible for various rates of tax exemption.

A nine percent tax credit can be taken for up to 10 years (for a total of 90 percent of the investment) by a developer who builds affordable units using conventional (taxable) financing. Expenditures allowed under this exemption would include the cost of new construction or substantial rehabilitation, but would not include land costs. It is also limited to include only those units which can be considered "affordable."

A four percent tax credit for 10 years (for a total of 40 percent of the investment) can be taken for projects using tax-exempt financing. In addition, the four percent tax credit can be taken for the investment in the acquisition of existing affordable units, provided that they have been in service for 10 years. As with the nine percent tax credit, land acquisition costs are not eligible.

"All of these incentives for building affordable housing may look attractive to a builder, but they often have difficulty in finding suitable land. With smaller parcels available and stringent local zoning

Gets Grant

Bradford College has received a $260,873 matching grant for academic facilities from the U.S. Department of Education.

The money will be used to update electrical systems in three of the college's oldest buildings: Academy, built in 1870, Denworth and Hasseltine halls, both dating from 1940. The buildings house the main dining room, administrative offices, student dormitory rooms, classrooms, laboratories, a television studio and a theater. Work will also include updating safety devices such as sprinkler systems.

The matching portion of the grant, an equal amount of money Bradford must raise, has already been received: $10,000 from the Stevens Foundation of North Andover and $250,873 from two anonymous donors.

The buildings are expected to be ready for fall classes. Summer programs on campus, such as Elder Hostel and College Academy (for gifted grade-school pupils) will take place as usual.

Elected President Of Firm

The board of directors of M/A-COM, Inc., Burlington, announced that Thomas F. Burke has been elected president and chief executive officer of the company.

Burke was elected after a nationwide search to replace Richard T. Dibona who suffered a stroke.

Burke has been chief operating officer since last November and previously was executive vice president-administration and finance.

Nelson Gifford, chairman of the board of Dennison Manufacturing Company, served as chairman of the policy and nominating committee of the M/A-COM board of directors. He stated, "The selection of Burke successfully concludes an extensive search carried on by the board, assisted by an outside of the company and made our decision after careful consideration of the qualifications of the candidates as well as the current operations and future opportunities of the company."

Burke stated, "It is a great honor to be named CEO of M/A-COM which is an excellent company with strong financial resources, a powerful presence in the marketplace, the broadest product line in our industry, unique technical strengths and employees who are dedicated to excellence. I plan to make a number of changes in order to improve the profitability of the company. The first will be a major change in the organization which I plan to announce in the next few days."

Burke, 57, joined M/A-COM in 1961 as assistant controller. He served as controller from 1964 to September 1980; as vice president finance from 1974 to January 1982; as treasurer from 1978 to February 1983. Burke has been executive vice president and finance from 1982 until he was elected chief operating officer earlier this fiscal year. He has been a member of the board of directors since 1983.

Prior to joining M/A-COM in 1961, Burke was employed by CBS Electronics Division of Columbia Broadcasting Sys-

Camp Evergreen director, Jim Loscutt, is pictured top left as he stands behind his son, Jim, Jr. (wearing glasses) This camp photo was taken 20 years ago. This year marks the 24th summer season of Camp Evergreen in Andover. Jim, Jr. will now be camp director as roles become reversed and the Loscutt grandchildren will become campers. Camp will open June 29.

Role Reversal At Camp

Did you know that 90 percent of businesses in America are family run?

Camp Evergreen in Andover is included in that category. As this day camp prepares to open its 24th summer season, the cast of principle characters has been rearranged. Lynn and Jim Loscutt selected ten acres adjacent to the 2,900-acre state forest in Andover to create a rustic camp which would develop their own three youngsters and eventually thousands of others.

Jim had just retired from playing nine years of basketball with the Boston Celtics and was about to combine creating his own coed day camp with a career of coaching and teaching at Boston State College in 1964. A basketball career keeps one away from a growing young family. The day camp would give him the opportunity to be with his youngsters as well as other campers.

Now, 24 years later, Jim, Jr. is running the camp program and the Loscutt grandchildren will be campers for the first time. Holly Loscutt-Randall will teach nature and help with her computer skills before camp to keep track of transportation. Her children will also be campers.

When did the Loscutt children become involved in running the camp? When they were eight and 10 years old, sitting around the camp fire staff discussions or hanging out during staff orientation training and contributed their point of view. The Loscutt youngsters grew up being part of a camp family.

The excitement and creativity of planning for a new summer season never diminishes. Each new summer has its own personality. This new season includes the satisfaction of seeing not only the second generation of Loscutt children, but many other staff members as well.

Women & Joint Custody

After divorce or separation, joint legal custody means that you and your husband must consult and agree on all major decisions governing your children's lives such as medical care, education and religious training. In recent years, joint legal custody has become very fashionable for separated and divorced couples because it appears to offer a way to involve both parents in their children's lives. However, joint legal custody requires you to maintain continued contact with your husband and may mean additional Court involvement in your family's life when you and your husband cannot agree.

Museum Receives $75,000 Award

The Museum of American Textile History, North Andover, has been awarded $75,000 in general operating support by the Institute of Museum Services. The museum is one of 409 museums nationwide that were awarded a total of $16.6 million.

The IMS General Operating Support award is based on the strength and quality of the applicant museum as demonstrated by its responses to application questions. Quality, for this competition, is defined as the judicious management of the museum's available resources to provide the best possible services to its community and the general public.

"Competition for these funds is strong and we are delighted to have been selected to receive this award," says Museum Director Thomas W. Leavitt. "IMS funds will make it possible for us to create and staff the position of museum registrar and to provide the registrar with the support staff necessary to computerize the collections catalog and to handle all of the paperwork entailed in moving the collections from five scattered sites to a central permanent location in Lawrence. This is essential if we are to achieve our goal of making our collections accessible for study and viewing in our new location."

The awards were announced by Lois Burke Shepard, director of the Institute of Museum Services, an independent agency within the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities. IMS was established by Act of Congress in 1976 to assist museums in their educational role and to help them modernize their methods and facilities so that they will be better able to preserve the nation's cultural, historic and scientific heritage.

In announcing the awards, Shepard said, "Museums in the United States are among the finest in the world and the Institute of Museum Services is proud to assist many exemplary institutions in their efforts to provide increasingly superior services to the public."

Nearly 1,300 museums applied for the one-year grants, which are made on a competitive basis. The Museum of American Textile History received especially high marks for its staff, collections and educational programs. The judges comments included: "The scope of collections... and the articles themselves seem to be of outstanding significance. This museum could serve as a base study of an institution which took a potentially awkward core collection and used it as a launching pad in forming a world-class collection. The professional staff is eminently qualified for the work before it. The role of research in this museum's whole essence could serve as a role model to the entire history museum profession. High mark for highly professional operation that has clearly and carefully charted its mission."

Summer Activities Planned

By Barbara Thibault

The Andover Historical Society plans a summer of activities; courses, tours and exhibits. Ancient Andover, a one-week course, provides an opportunity to explore Andover's history from 1630 to 1750. Participants will journey back in time, surveying architecture, understanding early industry, agriculture and trade, exploring eating habits and examining burial practices. Each two-hour session will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the society's meeting room at 97 Main St. Two field trips are planned to historical sites and a burying ground. The first session is scheduled between July 13 and 17 and the second from August 3 through the 7. The pre-paid registration is required through the Department of Community Services on Bartlet Street.

Lunch open hours will be held every Wednesday noon during July and August. Join Andover Historical Society members on the lawn with your bag lunch, weather permitting. Lemonade and cookies will be provided. Either the Amos Blanchard House Museum or the Barn Museum will be open for guided mini-tours at noon and 12:30 p.m. Normal tour hours will be between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. on Wednesdays. The tour of the Blanchard House begins with a short slide show introducing the changes which were taking place in the lives of people who lived in Andover and the nation during the early 19th century while

To assist developers in overcoming these obstacles, state legislation created the Comprehensive Permit process—which often allows a developer to increase per-acre density over local regulations or to side-step local zoning by-laws.

Next week, the TOWNSMAN will examine this legislation, the process and what the town government itself is doing to meet Andover's affordable housing needs.

Amos, his wife and two sons lived in this house. Selected topics, such as household management, politics, religion, economics and education, have been chosen to be discussed in each of the five period rooms. In each room appropriate furnishings and artifacts have been chosen to represent as accurately as possible how the rooms may have looked. Amos Blanchard's lifetime spanned the transition from an agricultural society to a more complex, industrial society. He is a representative character who lived in Andover during this period of transition as he was a member of the established leadership group.

The Barn Search, a seek-and-find tour, and a museum internship are available for students by calling the society. Two exhibits featuring Andover artists, Addi-

Nurse Honored By Hospital Staff

Marie Sanchez of Andover, a psychiatric nurse, has won New England Memorial Hospital's 1987 Siegert Memorial Award honoring the member of the Stoneham hospital's human services' nursing or counseling staff who has demonstrated the highest degree of professional achievement and growth during the past year. Sanchez has been at New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH) since 1979 and part of the adolescent team since 1983.

"Marie has such positive energy," wrote one of her co-workers in nominating her for the award. "I feel confident working with her, knowing that she takes her job seriously while carrying on obvious enjoyment of what she does throughout her days. She is forever learning and teaching. I continue to learn from her example which is strong and constant and caring."

"It really felt good to win," said Sanchez, who received a plaque, a monetary gift and will have her name added to the permanent plaque in the Ruble Building at NEMH. "My co-workers made it possible for me to win. This is an excellent adolescent program."

The Siegert award winner is selected from nonmanagement employees nominated by the human services staff. The department's director and physicians choose the winner.

"Hearing what my peers wrote about me was almost more meaningful than the award itself," Sanchez said.

The Religious Community

JUNE 18, 1987

Coming Of Age Ceremony At Unitarian Universalist Church

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover will celebrate a Coming of Age ceremony this Sunday, June 21, of three of its youth in a Rite of Affirmation.

Michelle Black, daughter of Betsy and Tom Black, Adam Galaburda, son of Margaret and Albert Galaburda, Samantha Genier, daughter of Cynthia and Robert Genier, are the affirmands.

The ceremony comes after a time of study with mentors, Gail Ens Dorf, Robert Genier and Tina LaFranchi, respectively, in which the affirmands looked at their religious heritage, its history, beliefs, people and structure. Service to the community was a practical application of their religious beliefs. The course of study was aimed to help these young people learn about their faith and achieve meaningful experiences in that faith. At the end of the study each participant developed a credo statement, an articulation and affirmation of belief. These credo statements will be read in the Rite of Passage, the study and affirmation parallels the Unitarian Universalist tradition that each person is responsible for his or her own faith commitment. This is encouraged and enhanced in religious community.

The morning's homily, "Generation to Generation," delivered by the Rev. Rosemarie C. Smurzynski, is about how the passwords of faith and tradition are transmitted from generation to generation.

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover is located at 6 Locket St., Andover. Child care is available. A reception in honor of the affirmands will follow the service. Visitors are welcome.

Volunteers

An opening currently exists for a volunteer to assist the Bon Secours Hospital emergency department late afternoons and evenings.

Responsibilities include acting as a liaison between patients, families and hospital staff.

The volunteer services program provides all necessary training and support. Bon Secours Hospital is located at 70 East St., Methuen.

To volunteer, call Jane Harold, director, volunteer services.

3 Complete Theology Course At Ceremony

During a diocesan-sponsored Festival Celebration of Holy Communion at Christ Church, Ruth Audiere, Alma Paradise and Phil Marsden were awarded diplomas for completing the EFM four-year theology course by Rev. Edward deBarry, executive field director for the School of Theology, the University of the South, Servance, Tenn.

Rev. Barbara Platt Hendren was the celebrant, using a Gallican liturgy which was more popular than the early Roman rite in the Imperial church at the time of Charlemagne.

Education for Ministry is a four-year extension program. There are presently 4,000 graduates world wide. The Andover group is the first EFM group in the diocese to complete the program.

Bishop David Johnson congratulated the graduation by letter. Lois Stevens, EFM diocesan coordinator, brought greetings from the Bishop and congratulations on her own behalf.

Supper followed in the parish hall.

Rev. Cornell Reappointed As Pastor

Bishop George W. Bashore appointed the Rev. Gary S. Cornell to another year as pastor of Ballard Vale United Church at last week's session of the Southern New England Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Joyce Robinson, a member of the Ballard Vale United Church, was elected as one of five lay delegates to the General Conference of the United Methodist Church which will meet in St. Louis in May 1988.

The congregation of the Ballard Vale United Church will worship this Sunday at 10:30 a.m. The pastor will have "Jacob and His father" as his preaching theme. There will be a church school program for children at the same hour. A fellowship time with light refreshments will follow the worship.

Seifert Proposes Town-Wide Conference On AIDS Threat

By Lewis C. Howe

Local religious, medical and community leaders should work together to educate Andover residents about the threat of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, said Dr. Kenneth Seifert, Superintendent of Schools.

Seifert plans to ask the school committee Tuesday to endorse a proposed town-wide AIDS conference, which would be held next fall.

"AIDS is the one issue that hits at the heart and moral fiber of the community," Seifert stated. The superintendent said he would like to see "greater visibility" from local clergy, medical personnel and parents in a dialogue on AIDS prevention.

Pat Palermo of the Andover Walk-in Medical Center "definitely" favors an organized community forum on AIDS. Palermo said she has discussed putting together "an information-type seminar" with Everett Penney, Director of the Department of Public Health.

Penney said a "unified approach" to AIDS education is essential. "We don't want just clinical services, but public education," he explained. Penney added no firm plans have been set for an open discussion of the issue, but he said Seifert's proposed conference is a "good possibility."

Palermo agreed education is the key to preventing the spread of AIDS. "The more people you can reach with this information, the less likely the disease is to be spread."

She emphasized that people need to learn the facts about AIDS, and this knowledge "is not getting out to the community."

Residents need to learn AIDS is not "someone else's disease," Palermo commented. "Once people realize, 'yes, it can happen to me,' they will start being more careful," she said.

The Health Department receives "one or two" inquiries on AIDS per week, Penney said.

Rev. Richard O'Leary, OSA, of St. Augustine's Parish said he "firmly endorses" a town-wide AIDS conference. It would be "a great start" for increasing public awareness of the disease, O'Leary commented. "AIDS is a terrible tragedy which will be getting worse," he added.

O'Leary will be on sabbatical for the second half of this year, but said he would expect St. Augustine's to be involved in any community effort against AIDS.

Seifert said such a forum is necessary to shift the burden of AIDS education away from the schools. He stressed academics must be the first priority in the classroom, not "big moral and social issues."

One mistake school systems make, Seifert stated, "is the inclination that we are somehow responsible for AIDS education." He cited similar attitudes toward sex and values education stressed during the 1960s as tying up local school departments, preventing them from properly teaching academic basics.

"Before we buy into all that (AIDS education)," Seifert said, "we have to ask 'what about academic learning?'"

Dr. Seifert expressed disdain for trends toward so-called "safe sex" education in public schools, saying it excludes moral considerations.

"Once we accept the notions of 'safe sex' we are accepting that thing called adultery." This means, Seifert continued, "we are then by definition not good Christians or Jews," since extramarital sex is forbidden by both religions.

Seifert said he will also ask for input from parents' groups on the best means of combatting the AIDS problem.

"This is a medical issue, a religious issue, and a family issue," he emphasized.

Seifert reiterated his opposition to dispensing condoms in the schools. This approach, endorsed by the Massachusetts Teachers Association, is an "inappropriate" solution to the AIDS problem, he said.

"Why don't we give (prophylactics) to parents and clergy, and let them pass them out if they choose?" the superintendent quipped.

An AIDS conference, Seifert said, would likely be held at the High School after the opening of the fall term, in order to maximize attendance.

The School Committee will also discuss a new system-wide attendance policy for children with AIDS next Tuesday.

Working from guidelines recommended by the Governor's Task Force on AIDS, the proposed policy encourages local school systems to allow children diagnosed as having AIDS, or with clinical evidence of infection with the AIDS-associated virus, Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), to attend classes under certain circumstances.

In order to be allowed in school, a child must be receiving medical attention for the ailment. The afflicted child is subject to restriction from the classroom if skin eruptions or weeping lesions are present which cannot be safely covered, according to the policy statement.

A child with AIDS may also be kept out of class, the document states, if the child exhibits "inappropriate behavior," which would lead to transmission of the disease, such as biting or frequent incontinence.

Children diagnosed with AIDS, or with clinical evidence of infection with the HIV virus, who are too ill to attend school, should have an appropriate alternative education plan.

Under the drafted AIDS policy, siblings of children diagnosed as having AIDS or HIV are able to attend school with no further restrictions.

The AIDS policy guidelines also clearly appoint the

Indoor Riding Facility Again Heard By Zoning Board

By Karen L. Day

The Zoning Board of Appeals again considered the Ironstone Farm petition to build an indoor riding facility at their June 4 meeting, in addition to holding six other public hearings—three of which were to convert single family homes to two-family status.

Richard Donovan, owner of Ironstone Farm, 456 Lowell St., originally petitioned the board for a variance to allow the construction of an indoor riding facility that would not meet minimum setbacks, and was denied. The building was redesigned so it would meet the setbacks, but according to Donovan's representative, Atty. Samuel Concemi, the Building Inspector's office would not issue a building permit.

According to Concemi, the inspector considered the facility an "accessory" to the dwelling. Accessory buildings are not allowed to have a greater square footage than the main building, which in this case, he said, was the dwelling.

Concemi contends that the facility would not be accessory to the house, but would, in effect, become the main building on the parcel. Thus, they are asking that the building inspector's decision be overturned, or that they be granted a special permit to allow the construction of the facility.

The farm, said Concemi, has been operating under all conditions set by the board since the last hearing. He added many of those abutters who are against the construction of the facility had their children trained in horsemanship on the farm.

Health and other issues brought up at the last petition hearing, were not applicable to this situation, Concemi commented. This should be a simple by-law interpretation case. Yet he continued on to say that the health department and MSPCA had been out to the farm and found no problems.

If the neighbors didn't like the farm's existence, he added, they should have appealed the board's original decision to continue the land's use as a farm and school of horsemanship after the last hearing—not now.

After Concemi finished and the board asked questions, Chairman Wesley Whitney commented that it would not be necessary to hear arguments in favor of the petition, because the board would take into account such past testimony. Donovan protested, explaining that he felt it unfair that those in favor were asked to be quiet, but those against the petition would be heard. Whitney agreed to hear both sides once again.

Many parents spoke in favor of the petition, due to the operation of the "Challenge Unlimited" program, which is a therapeutic riding program for the handicapped, used by many handicapped organizations. Arguments in favor included accolades for the program, and other testimony cited the financial necessity of having an indoor facility so that the school could operate in poor weather.

Speaking on behalf of an abutters group, Atty. Arthur McCabe explained that no one was against the farm as a whole, but abutters are concerned about traffic on Lowell St. Additionally, he said, the farm has not yet complied with a Conservation Commission order, and there are concerns regarding the watershed overlay.

Janitors Accused In Drug Ring

By Lewis C. Howe

Andover and North Andover police joined forces to crack an apparent theft and drug operation allegedly run by custodians at Andover High School.

James C. Stearns, Jr., 30, a custodian at Andover High, and his wife, Rita, 29, were arrested Monday night at their home in North Andover following a three-hour search of the premises by law enforcement officials from both towns.

Andover Detective David Grant said both suspects were charged with receiving stolen property and possession of a Class D, (marijuana), substance with intent to distribute. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns were each released on $2500 bail. A pre-trial hearing is set for September 14 in Lawrence District Court.

Detective Grant termed the arrests as an example of positive results which occur "when different jurisdictions work together."

Grant, Detective Bob Cronin, officer Don Pattullo and North Andover Detective Don Foulds recovered an estimated $8,000 in merchandise previously reported missing from Andover High School. The officers also found a quarter pound of marijuana, with a street value of $1,800, at the Stearns residence at 37 East Water St., North Andover.

Asst. Superintendent Leaving; Position May Remain Vacant

By Lewis C. Howe

Dr. Leslie G. Loomis will not continue in the position of Assistant Superintendent of Andover Secondary Schools after his contract expires June 30.

Loomis, in Andover since October 1984, has accepted a superintendent's position for the Bethlehem Central School District, Delmar, N.Y.

Loomis, originally from Rochester, N. Y., characterized his return to the Empire State as "a wise personal decision at this time."

"I have enjoyed very much the 2½ years in Andover," he said, "but it is time to move my career ahead." Taking a top position at what he called a high quality school system in New York State "seemed to make sense," he added.

Loomis stated he had been looking for a new position since last fall. He will take over at Bethlehem on July 1.

Dr. Loomis referred to his experience dealing with secondary school issues in Andover as invaluable to his growth as an administrator. He praised the school staff, students and parents in town and said he "appreciated the opportunity to work with people here."

In the wake of Loomis' announced departure, Dr. Kenneth Seifert, Superintendent of Schools, said this week he will propose abolishing the Assistant Superintendent's position at the secondary level. "I will recommend (to the school committee) that no replacement be named for Loomis," Seifert stated.

Dr. Seifert cited budget cuts proposed by the school committee as contributing to his decision. "The school committee suggested a reduced budget in the Assistant Superintendent's office," he commented. "My feeling is that if you have a comprehensive school curriculum and instruction plan, then you have a need for an assistant superintendent to oversee things at both the elementary and secondary levels."

"But," he continued, "without the funding for such programs, we didn't feel a need for two superintendents."

The school committee recommended a $50,000 cut in the administrative budget at its last meeting on June 3, specifically under the 1410 account—the Assistant Superintendent's Office.

Seifert did not indicate what impact this would have on Lois Haslam, Assistant Superintendent to the Elementary Schools. The decision whether to replace Dr. Loomis will be discussed at the school committee meeting June 30, Seifert said.

Loomis emphasized the school committee's budget had nothing to do with his decision to leave Andover, but he did urge local residents to "hopefully consider giving more money to the school system."

Without the funds for new programs and quality facilities, Loomis cautioned, teachers and staff may become worn down and burnt out within a few years.

Dr. Loomis also mentioned a lack of available monies at the

Some thoughts on varied issues passing through the Andover scene of late beginning with some commentary on the recent special town meeting.

Overall tone of the calling of the special session and its conduct up to and including the night of the event is indicative of appealing to those who would do away with town meeting completely.

There was little public appeal on the part of municipal officials to get enough people to show for the session. Let alone participation or attendance by the general public, many municipal officials were notable by their absence. Not certainly indicative of civic-minded leadership by those in authority.

Then there was the claim that the exercise in frustration would cost the taxpayers in the vicinity of $20,000. We have reason to doubt that figure, but even if true, it points to a negative attitude concerning open town meeting by indicating that such a democratic procedure is costly at best.

That whole Monday night exercise seemed to show that selectmen wanted to satisfy any doubts about the action taken to close the annual town meeting. The session was 'dissolved' when a quorum was questioned. The TOWNSMAN and the Andover League of Women Voters questioned the legality of the move, thus the board felt it necessary to allow voters the opportunity to act on the issues which were victimized by the legal maneuver.

The special session may, or may not, have satisfied the legality of the whole affair, thus allowing municipal operations to move ahead without incident. But, it certainly could have been handled better at the administrative level.

And, while on the subject of municipal operations, it is easy to detect that there must be some political overtones to the current school budget cut controversy.

With the resignation of the Asst. School Supt. Leslie Loomis this past week, Supt. Kenneth R.

Seifert indicated that he possibly will not fill the position, based on the school committee proposed deletion of $50,000 from the administrative budget.

There have been other discussions between administration and school committee as to what direction the schools should take in view of the cut in the budget dictated by town meeting.

First of all, it is doubtful the budget would have been cut, even though the Finance Committee had recommended, had the school board made a stronger case for the funds desired.

But, more importantly, now that the funds have been deleted, it seems proper for the school board and the administration to work harmoniously toward providing the best education and professional staffing as possibly can be accomplished.

To use administrative and professional staff positions as pawns to prove a point would be a dangerous precedent.

Finally, it would seem proper to examine the matter of prohibiting construction outside areas served by town water a little more closely before actually legislating against such building.

A Supreme Court ruling this past week may have some bearing on the issue, since it has ruled that municipalities may not legislate against the disposal of private property or dictate the size of house lots, etc.

Too, there are several large plots in Andover owned by people who have held them and paid taxes on them for years in anticipation of disposing of the property as part of their retirement.

These people are being penalized and might stand a very good chance of obtaining their just reward through court action against the town.

Certainly we can sympathize with public safety and public works officials with regard to the matter. But it still seems as though a person should be allowed to dispose of property as seen fit by the owner.

Gardeners Explain

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

This letter, from the board of directors and entire membership of the Four Seasons Garden Club of Andover, is to inform you of our decision concerning our relationship with Memorial Hall Library.

In the fall of 1985, the club attempted to install a new "old" garden near the library's front entrance. This has been a matter of public record and received much newspaper coverage.

The project is the resoration of a 23-foot oval planting area as it appeared in photos dating back to 1905.

Extensive research by the club members and the staff at the Andover Historical Society turned up a number of good photographs establishing the fact that a planting island was a part of the original landscaping and remained there well beyond the 1920s. A successful appeal to the town's citizens resulted in interviews with Andover natives who confirmed this information. The oval planting area bordered by granite curbing would contain a low yew hedge and colorful seasonal planting.

The extensive research and professional landscape plans were the result of Four Seasons Garden Club members volunteering the necessary time and expertise. The plant material would be the gift of the club. The historical granite had been salvaged from the old Punchard School steps and installation was to be performed by town workmen. It was our intention to make the library entrance attractive and historically significant at no cost to the town or the library.

Work was begun in late 1985 and abruptly halted for reasons still not completely clear to us. In the spring of 1986, we were directed by the town manager, Kenneth Mahony, to appear before the arts committee of the library board of trustees and explain our proposal. At this time the plan was again presented and our professional landscape plans left with the committee representatives. We left the meeting with the expectation that our plan would be seriously considered and eventually approved.

In March 1987, with the library expansion finally near completion, the club sought a target date for the garden's installation. The club was only then informed that the arts committee had engaged a landscape architect and a new plan was designed to be installed at an estimated cost of $55,000. The garden club's original plan was not even acknowledged. The plan's existence was even denied. It became apparent that the plan had not even been considered.

This cavalier dismissal of the garden club's interest in and efforts on behalf of the library has caused us to redefine our civic beautification role in Andover.

This is to inform you that we have voted unanimously to withdraw from any future participation at Memorial Hall Library, both in landscaping and maintenance as well as interior floral decoration.

Getting It Straight

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

I read about Central Park, the Horn Bridge and now, South Andover. Where are they all? Well, Central Park is in New York City. I presume that they are referring to "the park" surrounded by Bartlet, Chestnut and Whittier Streets and the Memorial Auditorium. The correct name is "The Park." It has been tabbed Bartlet Park, Chestnut Park, Whittier Park, Memorial Park and others. The correct name is "The Park."

Then we read about the Horn Bridge." Where is it? Which one is it? It's probably 50 years ago that the police department painted the word "horn" on the stone abutments of the two railroad bridges, one at the foot of Central Street, the other one over Burnham Road. Both are very dangerous underpasses. In recent years the stone abutments have been covered with graffiti. The word "horn" is practically obliterated. Some years ago a newspaper reporter with one of the papers tagged the bridge at Central Street the "Horn" bridge. Her successors have continued to use the name "Horn." New people in town don't know the difference.

The correct name for that bridge is "The Hartwell Abbott Bridge" named for a member of the old Abbott family who lived in the old Abbott house which stands on Andover Street about 100 yards from the bridge.

Then we read about South Andover. I suppose that they refer to "Scotland District," the area south of the Phillips Academy campus.

When these new people come into town and go to work on one of the local papers, they could do well to drop into the Andover Historical Society or the Memorial Hall Library and look at one of the old maps depicting all the old districts throughout the town. It could make a very interesting story.

Let's get back to the old traditional names. It's just as easy to be right as to be wrong.

Appalled

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

As a citizen of Andover and a professional economist, I am appalled that the Andover School Committee has been forced to consider cuts in teaching and staff positions and in library purchases in order to satisfy budgetary constraints. It should be evident by now that if the U.S. is to compete successfully with Europe and Japan, we need to produce highly skilled graduates of our public school system. Cutting state level as a problem endemic to Massachusetts schools.

"One of the reasons I moved back to New York," Loomis said, "is that the funding for schools at the state level there is much better than here."

"People don't realize," he went on, "the damage done by Proposition 2½. The people of Andover should appreciate the high quality education they get per cost."

Seifert praised Dr. Loomis' leadership ability and his work with administration and faculty at the secondary level, but again stated budget constraints imposed by the school committee had kept the Assistant Superintendent from carrying out certain programs.

The superintendent specifically pointed to the Curriculum and Instruction Plan, which Loomis worked on, as an example of the outgoing administrator's skills being smothered by a lack of funding which "wouldn't allow (Loomis) to pursue these ideas."

The Curriculum and Instruction Plan was a program devised by the administration earlier this year as a means of developing optimal curriculum, for grades K-12, by subject area. The plan also called for pilot programs in science and language arts, as well as Curriculum Development projects in the mathematics and social studies areas.

Prior to serving in the Andover school system, Dr. Leslie Loomis was principal at Fayetteville-Manlius High School near Syracuse, N.Y. from 1981-84. Before that he was principal at Ridgefield High School, Ridgefield, Ct., and Newton South High School, Newton, Mass.

He received a doctorate in education from Harvard Graduate School of Education in 1981, and a master's in business from Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration in 1976.

Loomis was a volunteer teacher in the Peace Corps in 1970. He also taught in Columbia, South America, during the 1960s. Dr. Loomis received his bachelor's degree from Williams College in 1967.

Drug Ring

Three digital scales, which Grant said were used "for drug weighing and packaging," were unearthed during the search. The scales are valued at $950 apiece.

Police also confiscated an Apple computer and printer, a cable television box, numerous small school items, assorted drug paraphernalia and $1200 in cash.

Police reported a significant amount of athletic equipment stolen from the high school had been returned.

In addition to the North Andover charges, James Stearns was also charged by Andover police with seven counts of larceny over $100 and malicious damage over $100.

"The problem of theft and vandalism in the Andover schools should slow down" following Stearns' arrest, Grant said. The detective acknowledged school thefts had been serious enough to warrant police investigation recently, but the situation "was never out of hand."

Police will also charge Andover High custodian Christopher L. Polianites, 19, of Lowell, with malicious damage over $100, Grant said. He added "there is a strong possibility" more arrests will be made, and more stolen property will be recovered.

No Andover High students are involved in the case at this time.

According to police officials, the investigation began after the June 6 arrest of Gary D. Acciard of Lawrence on burglary charges. Acciard is a former custodian for the Andover schools, including Andover High School.

Adopt-A-Park

Raytheon Company has made a significant contribution to the Lawrence Adopt-A-Park program.

Raytheon representatives presented a $5,000 check to Mayor Kevin J. Sullivan for the planning phase of the innovative community involvement program. Timothy R. Manning, industrial relations manager for Raytheon's Andover facility, said, "We hope our seed money for this creative partnership approach will ensure that Lawrence's parks are preserved and once again become a source of community pride."

As envisioned under Lawrence's Adopt-A-Park program, citizens will be able to sign up for their own park. Working with park management experts, they will devise plans to improve the site. For example, neighbors might offer to clean up the park, plant flowers and trees, install paths, benches, fountains and lighting or make other contributions.

Once the improvements are made with funds raised through private donations from businesses, organizations and individuals, the city will be responsible for maintenance and upkeep.

Track Season Highly Successful

It was a highly successful season for the Andover High Track team, as both the Girls' and Boys' squads ran off with the Merrimack Valley League Championship.

The Girls' Track team also outdistanced the competition at the Wilmington Invitational Meet and the Andover Boosters Invitational contest.

The Andover girls placed second in the Northern Area meet and third in the State Class B competition.

The Boys' contingent likewise sprinted to victory in the Andover Boosters' Invitational, and won the Northern Area meet.

The Boys' team came in second at the State Class B contest.

Individual achievements also abounded as David Doyle broke the school record for the 800 meter run with a time of 1:57.2 at the State Class B Championships. Other notables included the 50.7 second time clocked by the Girls' 440 meter relay team of Wendy Carothers, Nicole Demaso, Chris Recesso, and Sue Santagati at the State All Class meet. That bravura performance equalled the school record.

Gary Ziegler of the Boys' team placed 6th in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles at the State All Class competition.

Next year's Andover High Track Captains were selected recently. The leaders for the girls are Kim Heseltine, Tara Jefferson, Chris Recesso and Sue Santagati. Craig Buscema, Wayne Buschman, Mike Mooney and John Perry will help carry the torch for the Boys' Squad.

End of season individual awards went to Girls' team members Wendy Carothers, who won the Laurie Bourrelais Memorial outstanding performance award; Kate Pierson, who captured the Jon Langdell Memorial Award for Indoor Track; Denise Doran ran off with the J. E. Collins Memorial Award for Outdoor Track; Nicole Demaso, who won the Gary Mevens Memorial Award for Indoor & Outdoor Track.

Boys' winners included David Rehe, winner of the Roger Whitcomb Memorial Award for Most Improved; John Lecomte, who won the Paul MacInnis Memorial Award for Indoor Track; David Doyle, who captured the Robert Vogt Memorial Award for Outdoor Track; and Gary Ziegler, who took the Hal Wenner Memorial Award for Indoor and Outdoor Track.

Andover Girls are Bay State Selections

Lee Dziadosz and Julie Salazar, both of Andover, have been chosen as finalist and will participate in the Bay State Games in girls' scholastic basketball. Fifty-five all-star candidates from area high schools competed for 12 positions on the finalist team. Both girls will play this summer on the Northeastern Massachusetts team against teams from five other regions of the state.

The Bay State Games are organized by the Massachusetts Amateur Sports foundation to encourage the development of amateur sports and opportunities for excellence and self-development through amateur sports. The athletes of the Bay State Games include Olympic medalists, national champions, collegiate and high school all-Americans as well as thousands of lesser known, but equally determined and devoted amateur athletes. Now in its seventh year, the games will be played in Boston on July 9, 10, 11 and 12 when teams vie for bronze, silver and gold medals. More than 4,000 athletes will compete in basketball, boardsailing, cycling, diving, fencing, field hockey, gymnastics, ice hockey, racquetball, rowing, shooting, soccer, swimming, synchronized swimming, table tennis, track and field, volleyball, water polo, weightlifting and wrestling.

Bank of Boston, presenting sponsor of the games, will award $13,000 in scholarships to high school juniors entered in the games. The scholarships will be awarded to two state-wide finalist and eight regional finalists who best exemplify the games theme of "Lead by Example."

Dziadosz was named an Eagle-Tribune All-Star in field hockey as a sophomore at Andover High School and played on the Merrimack Valley Conference All-Star field hockey team. She was a leading scorer on the varsity basketball team and played on the varsity softball team. Salazar, an honor student, played varsity basketball and was the leading hitter on the varsity softball team. Both girls played AAU basketball this spring for the Newton Yellow Cab Junior Olympic teams. Both will be juniors in the fall.

Weitzman Lacross MVP, All-Star

Anne Weitzman of Andover, a junior, was named Most Valuable Player for women's varsity lacrosse during recent varsity awards ceremonies at Governor Dummer Academy in Byfield.

Weitzman, daughter of Mrs. Judith E. Finman of Andover and Arthur J. Weitzman of Newtonville, contributed 26 goals for the season and was named to the All-Star team of the Independent School League. She and three other GDA women were also named to the ISL's high scorer list. Her colleagues included Paula McCarthy of Lynfield, a senior who had 16 goals for the year and 60 for her career; senior Lucy Armstrong of Byfield with 14 and junior Kara Moheban of Nashua, N.H., with 21.

Weitzman received her third varsity letter for lacrosse. Lisa DiIorio and Jahna Boutin, seniors from Andover, received their third and second letters, respectively.

B.J. Burgess and Jim Sullivan, juniors from Andover, will serve as co-captains of the varsity golf team next spring for the second season. Their team came from a 57-point deficit after the first round of the three-round Witherspoon Cup tourney with Phillips Academy, Andover, and Phillips Exeter, to win it for the first time in five years and the third time in history. The co-captains were second-year letter winners; Todd O'Brien of Andover, a junior, received his first.

Other Andover varsity letter winners included Jeffrey Ashworth and Mike Hart, seniors, third and second letters for varsity baseball; Chris DiClemente, Matt Fardy and Jim Yawn, juniors, first letters for varsity lacrosse; Anne Taylor, a senior, third letter for women's track.

Winning certificates for excelling on sub-varsity teams were:

From Andover: Jeff Abrams, a junior, JV golf; Rob Ashworth, a sophomore, thirds lacrosse; Kristen Brown, a sophomore, thirds women's lacrosse; Lindsey Curley, a sophomore, JV women's tennis; Phil Dimitriou, a sophomore, JV golf; Nicolle Fardy, a freshman, thirds women's lacrosse; Erin Gurry, a freshman, thirds women's lacrosse; Mike Kalik, a freshman, JV golf; Jonathan Lewis, a freshman, thirds lacrosse; Steve Mollineaux, a freshman, thirds baseball; Jessica Tippo, a freshman, JV women's track; Chris Troianello, a freshman, JV men's tennis; Lori Weener, a freshman, thirds women's lacrosse.

The first formal rules for baseball required that the winning team score no fewer than 21 runs.

Orioles 9 - White Sox 7

Chad Bowman pitched a complete game to lead the Orioles in a 9-7 win over the White Sox. He struck out ten and scattered six hits.

The Orioles scored first when Bowman drove Ken Oppenheim home with a single. The Sox took the lead in the second when an errant Oriole play, a Mike Famiglietti triple and Colin Arsenault's single resulted in five runs.

The Orioles scored four in the third when Rodd Malitsky doubled and Oppenheim, Robbie Lewis and Mike Shepard singled to chalk up RBIs. Four more Orioles scored in the fourth when consecutive base hits by Mike Trombly, Chris Hoffman and Bobby Rygwalski preceded an Oppenheim single and a Bowman double.

The White Sox scored single runs in the fifth and sixth with Tom Clarke, Tim Foley and Steve Marchlik all contributed base hits. Other Sox hitters in the game were Brian Croteau, Ed Jurdi and Eddie Fortuna.

Famiglietti made several nice plays at shortstop for the Sox and Oriole centerfielder John Bowman made a great shoestring catch to Rob Arsenault. Oriole catcher Mike Trombly (two base-hits) started his second game behind the plate and played his position well with several nice blocks.

Indians 12 - Orioles 11

The Indians defeated the Orioles in seven innings for their third victory of the year. Trailing 10-4 in the last of the fifth, they tied the game and tied it again in the sixth and won it in the seventh.

The Orioles established the lead over the first five innings with timely hitting and great baserunning. Mike Trombly had two hits (one double) and two RBIs. John Bowman and Chad Bowman each hit triples and had two RBIs. Rod Malitsky, Mike Sheperd and Rob Lewis added singles.

Bob Daley led the Indians with four base hits, four RBIs and three runs scored. Jeff Pothier contributed three hits (one triple), two runs scored and knocked in the winning run. Nate Roberts (scored the winning run) and Rob Derba added two hits each. Matt Reghitto, Chris Cullen and Mike Maguire had base hits.

Bob Daley pitched two outstanding innings of relief ball, striking out six.

Twins 10 - Indians 9

The Twins overcame an early five-run Indian lead to win 10-9 on a clutch bottom of the sixth inning double by Ian Timmons (his third hit of the game) that drove in the winning run. Early pitching wildness and a key double by Joe Shea led to five first-inning Indian runs. The Twins scored six runs in the bottom of the first with five hits, including two by Timmons and a double by John Camillus.

Keith Bilger, Doug Cullen and Camillus had two hits each. Nate Roberts, Bob Daley and Matt Reghitto had hits for the Indians while John Formichella and Ricky Mendez had hits for the Twins. The catchers, Matt Reghitto (Indians) and Cullen (Twins), starred defensively.

Twins 14 - Orioles 3

The Twins scored at least three runs in each of the first four innings as they capitalized on a few key hits and outstanding base running to constantly put pressure on the Oriole fielders. John Formichella had three hits, Ian Timmons had two and Keith Bilger, Ricky Mendez, Doug Cullen and Mike Maesano added hits. Rod Malitsky (2 hits), Charles Bowman, Robby Lewis and Kenny Oppenheim were the Oriole hitters. The Twins played an outstanding defensive game with first baseman Formichella registering five putouts. Bowman turned an unassisted double-play for the Orioles. Twin pitchers Todd Cadagan and Bilger allowed only five scattered hits.

Michelle Soreff

Wins Gymnastics Championship

Michele Soreff, a sophomore at Andover High School, captured the All-Around Gold Medal for her outstanding performances at the New England regional AAU gymnastics meet last weekend at Andover High School.

She not only took the All-Around first place trophy, but captured two more gold medals, one of them on floor exercise with an 8.85 score out of a possible 10. The other first-place gold medal was in the uneven bars with a 9.1. Soreff added a silver second place on balance beam with an 8.1. Her all-around score beat out many girls from all over New England when she earned a 34.5 total score.

Because of her exceptional talent, Soreff has been traveling the United States this year in national invitational meets. Last fall she helped her team capture a fifth-place victory against teams from all over the United States in Gainesville, Fla., with her high scoring ability. She has traveled to Iowa, Pennsylvania and New York competing as a team and individual performer.

This year Soreff finished in seventh place all-around at the Class I State Meet against girls that have been seasoned veterans of the Class I level (the level just below Olympic—Elite). Two years ago she was the Class II state champion.

Soreff looks forward to finishing this season with two major meets, Bay State Games in July and the National AAU Jr. Olympics in Springfield in August. She is coached by Lori Rosati and spends 20-25 hours a week training at Reading Gymnastics Academy, 172 Woburn St., Reading.

Baseball Seniors Moving On

The end of a season is often met with mixed emotions by a high school coach. It is the time when he realizes that the young men he has seen grow will move on, but, happily, the young men on the Andover baseball team will continue to grow in other academic institutions.

Tri-captain Glen Allard who hit .367 for the season, led the team in five offensive categories and was only the second athlete in Andover High School sports to receive 10 varsity letters, will attend Babson College.

Cam Deery, who hit .327, led the team in five offensive categories, a defensive standout at third base, will attend the University of Vermont.

Chris Sapuppo, who hit .350, led the team in three offensive categories, including stolen bases, will attend Phillips Academy.

Gerry Nassif, the leading hitter at .421, will move on to the University of Massachusetts.

Mark Tucker, a fine defensive first baseman, will move on to Dennison College in Ohio.

Mark Hashem, the team's relief specialist who worked hard and was ready to work when called upon, will attend the University of Massachusetts.

As people as well as players, they will be missed but will be positive additions to their new academic institutions.

Northeast Entry At 3-1

The Andover entry in the 16-18-year-old Northeast League is off to a 3-1 start. They lost their opening game to Winchester 8-5. The team received fine pitching from Steve Howes, who also had three hits. Mike Moriarity had a double which drove in two runs. Joe Iarrobino had the only other hit. Peter Radulski played well defensively.

The team defeated Melrose in its second game 15-2 with Matt Pothier, Moriarity, John Russell and Jack Dalton contributing two hits apiece. Keith Abernathy and Andy Weiner each had a hit driving in two runs. Russell and Scott Wallace combined on a four hitter.

In the Dracut game the team was victorious behind the 9 strikeout, 6 hit and 4 runs performance of Russell. They won 9-4 behind the hitting of Pothier (1 hit, 2 RBIs), Moriarity (1 hit, 2 RBIs), John Glynn (triple, 2 RBIs) and Weiner (1 hit, 1 RBI). Moriarity played well in centerfield.

Cardinals Maintain Pace

By Jim Arnold

The Cardinals upped their second-half ledger to 3-0 and 12-1 by defeating the Pirates and Braves in the National Major League division of the Andover Little League. They earned their wins the hard way by overcoming the pitching duo of Andrew Novelline and Rejji Hayes.

The Pirates are within striking distance with a 3-1 record while the ever-dangerous Cubs are making title noise.

Cardinals 12 - Pirates 3

Justin Hesenius staged a one-man wrecking show. He chucked three no-hit innings, blasted a homer and added two doubles good for five RBIs.

Hesenius rapped his fourth homer of the season in inning one to give the Cardinals a lead they never relinquished. Three runs in the second and two in the third, keyed by Jarrod Martellucci safeties, expanded their advantage. Ricky Crispo, Andy Brown and Todd Harris contributed two hits each to later rallies.

The Pirate cause was highlighted by the hitting of Anthony Russo, Brendan Finneran and Scott Henry. Ten-year-old Alex Marshall pitched credibly and stroked a single.

Cardinals 5 - Braves 2

The lone Cardinal loss to date had been to the Braves, a game in which Rejji Hayes had hurled hitless ball in contributing to a shutout. The Cards managed just four hits off Hayes this time around.

Ten-year-old Paul Cassidy garnered two of those hits and accounted for two RBIs. Brian Flanagan rapped a solo safety and scored twice, while Justin Hesenius had an RBI rip.

Andrew Brown hiked his mound record to 6-0, going the route while striking out eight. He allowed three hits and walked just one.

Mike Sullivan cracked a pair of doubles for the Braves and Kevin Lane laced the other hit. Hayes struck out six in his four-inning stint.

Cubs 7 - Braves 6

This Cub win was preserved by rookie Glen Aeder, who stabbed a bloop fly that evolved into a game-ending double play. The play stifled a fierce ninth-inning comeback by the Braves.

Gus Quattlebaum three two smooth innings and collected two hits, while John Shea pitched the final four frames and contributed two hits. Cub rookie Albie Giangregorio's two-run single proved to be decisive. Shortstop Pat Walsh turned in a stellar performance.

Mike Sullivan and Matt Wolcott stung the Cubs for two hits each, while catcher Kevin Lane rifled down two base thieves.

Cubs 6 - Mets 4

Gus Quattlebaum's continued mound brilliance stifled the Mets early and enabled his Cub unit to mount an early 4-0 advantage. He helped himself with a pair of clutch hits while Ricky Saggese, John Shea and David Kelmer also swatted Met offerings.

Saggese threw an effective three innings to earn a save. He was aided by the fielding of second-sacker J.P. Guerard.

Paul Allard and Todd Murray had two hits each for the Mets and shortstop Ryan Moynihan stared defensively.

Pirates 16 - Mets 6

Andy Novelline cracked four hits to pace a 16-hit barrage in this Pirate rout. His totals included a grand slam, triple and two singles and, for good measure, he picked up a pitching victory.

Scott Henry connected for three doubles, Alex Marshall powered three safeties and Tony Russo and Toby Guzowski each clouted two hits. A seven-run fifth inning was triggered by the bats of Peter Daniels and Steve Hosmer.

Paul Allard turned in another sterling defensive game for the Mets behind the plate in addition to belting a double. Brian Landry struck for two hits and Todd Murray had a triple.

Kitchen Design

COUNTER HEIGHTS

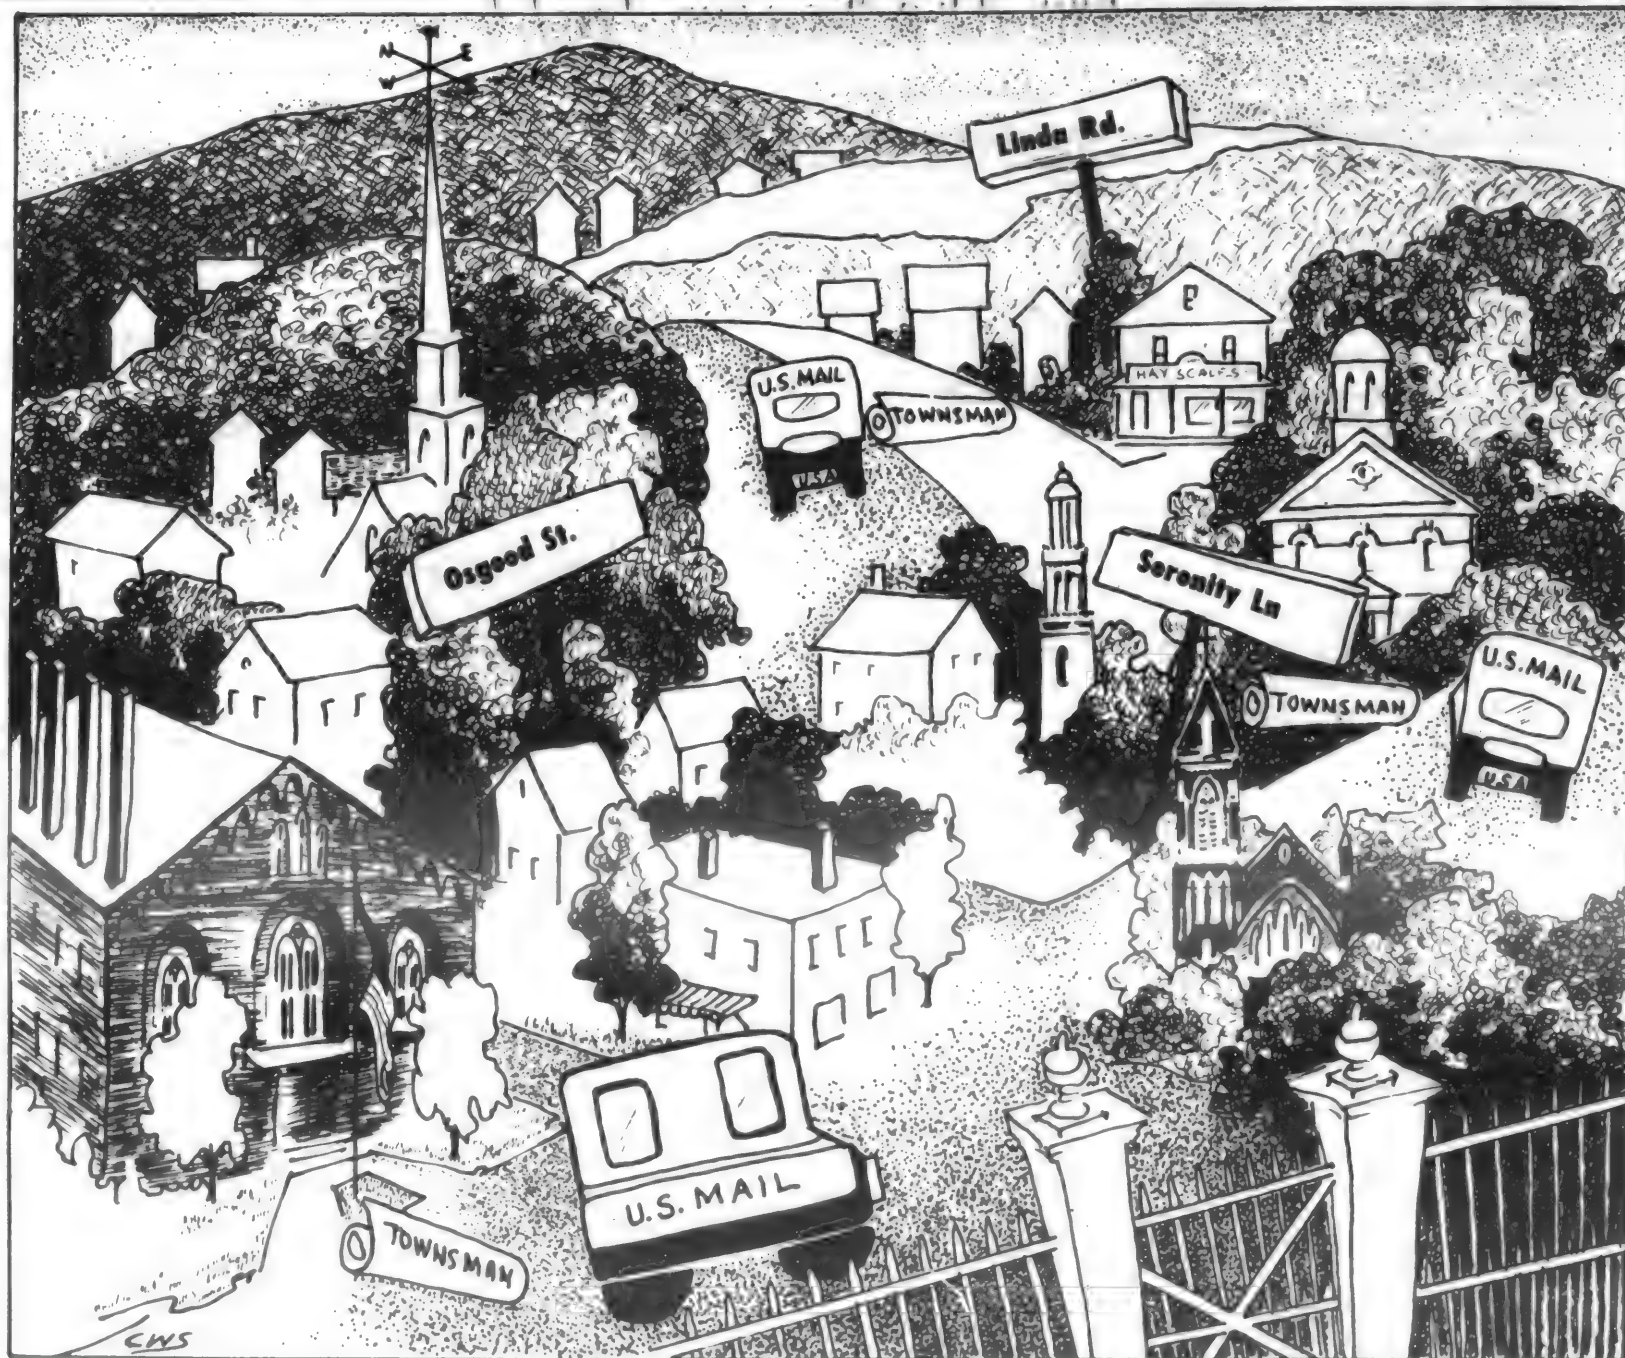

Counter heights are often overlooked when planning a kitchen. The standard height for a kitchen counter is 36 inches. However, those who stand six feet or taller may want counters which are higher. Also, if you are under five feet, you will want lower cabinets. Chopping block and mixing counters are frequently lowered to 30 to 32 inches. The reduced height enables you to comfortably wield a meat cleaver or mallet. In addition, working a wire whisk around a mixing bowl is less of a strain when your arm is fully extended, as the 30 to 32-inch height allows, rather than partially bent, as the 36-inch height forces you to do.

When you bought your house you probably had no choice in cabinets, counters and the height of them. Now that you want to remodel your kitchen have a say in what is convenient to you. At WINDSOR KITCHENS we listen to what you say and design a kitchen that is suited to the ways you work in your room. Visit our showroom to see the versatility in our cabinets. We're at 1181 Boston Rd., Ward Hill. We're here Wed. 9-8; Thursday 9 to 5:30; Friday 9 to 5:30; Saturday 10 to 2; Sun., Mon., Tues. closed or by appointment. Tel. 372-3444

Girls Win Summer Hoop Opener

Andover girls played their season opener last Wednesday night in the high school division of the Women's Basketball League at Northern Essex Community College. Andover defeated St. Mary's of Lawrence 30-24.

Andover piled up 19 first-half points, mostly a result of fast breaks by guards Stephanie Aumais, Lisa Fosella and Anne Marie Charland. Kristen Sullivan, Amy Habeeb and Jackie Kupa controlled the boards with Kupa pulling down a game-high 10 rebounds.

Charland was high team scorer with eight points on 4-for-6 shooting from the floor. She played an excellent all-around game, contributing five rebounds. Julie Enos had 6 points and Sullivan had 4.

Other members of the team are Sue Boush, Allison Burke, Kim Daley, Liz Hanson, Jodi Janagro and Cara Slavin. Lee Dziadosz and Julie Salazar will join the team later in the season.

Angels Win Again

The Angels picked up four more runs to outpace the Sox 15-9.

The Angels are now 6-0 for the season.

The Andover Angels scored two decisive victories by pounding the Braves 26-4 and beating the Red Sox 15-9 in Senior League play.

Peter Reming won his first with strong relief pitching from Steve Mollineau.

The Angels capitalized on every scoring opportunity. A winning combination of 14 hits, 12 stolen bases and aggressive play was the successful formula in the team's fifth win.

Chris Caltigirone picked up his third win and Mollineau the save during the 15-9 Angels' victory.

Mike Plankey and Steve Caltigirone led the hitting attack early in the first inning. Singles by Steve and Chris and Tucker set the stage for Plankey's base-clearing triple. The Angels scored eight times in the first and three times in the second to get on top early. The Red Sox struck back with five runs in the third, taking advantage of five base-on balls combined with aggressive base running. Mollineau relieved Caltigirone, who was experiencing some stiffness.

child's personal physician as the primary manager of the child, in determining whether to allow the child to attend school.

The personal physician, the statewide policy says, is responsible for reporting AIDS cases to the state Department of Public Health's Division of Communicable Disease, as well as the School Superintendent in the town where the child will attend school.

Only persons with an absolute need to know, the document emphasizes, should be told of a student's medical condition. These persons could include the school principal, the school nurse, or the child's teacher. These individuals should be notified directly by the superintendent.

If school officials have medical evidence the afflicted child may be a health threat to others, they can dismiss the child from the class and request authorization from the child's personal physician so that class attendance complies with school policy.

If the views of the physician and school authorities conflict, the case should be referred to the Department of Public Health for review by an appointed physician who would determine the permissibility of attendance.

The policy also urges removal of an AIDS patient from school in the event of an outbreak of communicable diseases such as chicken pox or measles, until such time as they are no longer threatening to the child.

Testing for the HIV antibody is not recommended for any purpose other than to assist the child's physician in a highly selected set of clinical decisions. The results of HIV antibody tests should not be reported to schools.

The Governor's Task Force also calls for inservice education of appropriate school personnel to ensure proper medical and current information about AIDS is available.

Last week, Governor Dukakis announced a "teaching guide" for AIDS will be mailed to all school superintendents and school committees to encourage more classroom education about the disease in the coming school year. Use of the guide in local schools is optional.

Down The Years

tacular sponsored by the Andover Board of Trade.

The Town Employees Association will hold a special meeting to discuss the existing wage and salary plans. The meeting has been called on petition of many organization members.

The Selectmen are being informed this week that their insistence on ground cover, over the rough-graded recreation area at the High School, may result in increasing project costs by at least one-third.

An estimated 3,899 children will be attending public schools here in September.

10 Years Ago — June 1977

Andover residents, still in the process of adjusting to this year's tax increase, are now faced with hikes in water and sewer rates. Both will be retroactive to January 1, meaning an increase of about $20 a year for water per average household.

Philip J. Salamone, who has been active in the Shawsheen Village Association, was elected by the Selectmen Monday night to join them on the board.

Items of interest will be facing the Board of Appeals at its next meeting. The Raytheon Co. is seeking to erect two 50-foot towers at its Lowell St. facility, while Mohammed Khusro is seeking permission to establish a permanent outdoor recreation camp on Jenkins Road near the North Reading line.

Washington Avenue will be closed to traffic from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. June 25, for a block party.

Selectmen approved the Sunday Amusement License for a pinball machine at the Andover Grill, 40 Park St., which now has only a license for a juke box.

Opinion Sought On Senior Programs

The senior opportunities panel appointed by the Town Manager to report on programs for the elderly in Andover is seeking public opinion and input utilizing a unique approach. The panel has appointed the Rev. Phillips Henderson, interim minister of the First Baptist Church, as ombudsman. All seniors or interested parties desiring to contribute opinions regarding present programs for seniors and suggestions for improvement are asked to contact Rev. Henderson at the Andover Baptist Church or at home.

Other members of the panel are Larry L. Larsen, Doreen Correnti, Janet G. Gerraughty, Janet D. Lake, Thomas F. Powers, Gail F. Ralston, Arthur W. Smith.

will conduct a widow and widower discussion series, also on Mondays, from 11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Just getting out and meeting with others who are trying to adjust to the same problems you face has to help you cope. Sign up for this special opportunity. It lasts eight weeks and costs $35, and if it helps you regain a sense of joy and purpose, it will be money well spent. You could spend all Monday at the senior center for Carolyn Mattedi has a needlework class at 2 p.m. There is bridge and line dancing on Tuesdays and on the first and third Tuesdays, the Alzheimer support group meets. Look at the Department of Community Services booklet you received in the mail for more classes and activities at the senior center.

The center is sponsoring a potluck luncheon on July 1 at 11:30 a.m. and after lunch you can stay for a special holiday Bingo party. Call the center and tell them what you plan to bring to the luncheon or, if you're stuck for good ideas, they'll come up with suggestions. In any case, you need to let them know you plan to be there.

The senior center will be closed July 3 in celebration of Independence Day. All town offices will also be closed.

Vacancies exist in two program aid positions in the Adult Day Care program. If you are interested, you may fill out an application at the Town of Andover personnel office on the second floor of the Whittier Street side of Town Hall. Hours are flexible and total about 18 hours per week. It is an important position and an opportunity to help those who will benefit so much for your help. Find out more about it today. It may just be what you've been looking for in a meaningful part-time employment.

Do stop by our table on Sidewalk Bazaar days. We'll be giving out balloons and selling raffle tickets. Your support is needed. That's Friday and Saturday, June 26 and 27.

Akimi and Nicholas Valhouli.

Petro's: A Gourmet Seafood Deli!

From cooking a steak dinner for the Prince of Japan, to preparing lunches for diplomats in Tokyo, Chef Nicholas has done it all. Together with his fiancée Akimi, they have combined their talents and established a seafood and flower paradise right in the center of Andover.

For a truly unique and unusual experience, drop in to Petro's at 16 Post Office Ave., where you will find a wide and varied selection of fresh fish. Delivered twice daily, such delicacies as fresh blue fin tuna, Norwegian salmon, octopus, shrimp and calamari are but a few of the specialties offered. Ready for the barbecue or broiler are King crab legs, stuffed lobster and the specialty of the house, marinated swordfish kabobs.

This delightfully different establishment also offers a luncheon menu to satisfy any palate. During the summer months, Petro's is serving chilled Gazpacho, Vichyssoise and Pina Colada soups. In the Antipasto case, you may choose a Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Thai or various Mediterranean antipastos. Or, perhaps a sandwich of tuna or seafood salad. A variety of pasta is prepared daily, tossed with the likes of clams and basil, as an example. The tasty delights can be eaten at the counter or packed to go.

Ready for the oven or microwave, Petro's has freshly prepared frozen entrees such as shrimp scampi, poached salmon in caper sauce, scallops in lobster sauce and haddock vinaigrette, to name just a few.

Live lobsters are in the tank and the shellfish tank will feature oysters, cherrystones, mussels and steamers.

Visit this new seafood deli that not only excites the taste buds but pleases the eye thru the artfully decorated cases and floral arrangements of Akimi.

Open Tues. thru Sat., 9 to 7. Closed Sun. & Mon. Telephone Petro's at 475-1522.

Spacious interior of new North Andover store
Clifford & Rage Jewelers: Distinctive Jewelry

A new store has recently opened its doors in North Andover, though it is not new to the Community. Clifford & Rage Jewelers has opened in the Messina's Shopping Centre on Main Street, but their Salem, NH store has been serving customers for three years in the Rockingham Mall.

"Elegant, classic & distinctive jewelry" is not just a catchy phrase adopted, but a most appropriate description of the store's fare. Each piece of jewelry is personally chosen by the store owners, John Clifford and Charles Rage, along with their general manager, Jean Foley. The jewelry is selected first & foremost for its superior quality and second for uniqueness of style.

One of the outstanding features of Clifford & Rage Jewelers is the custom design work offered by John Clifford. Many of the pieces in the stores are one-of-a-kind exclusives, designed & created by Mr. Clifford. Some of the items featured are a diamond & gold link tennis bracelet, a sandblasted blue topaz pendant and a freeform gold "spider's web" set with an onyx and diamond "spider".

John Clifford and Charles Rage have collectively been in the jewelry business for many years and together with Jean, choose items from all over the world to offer in their stores.

Clifford & Rage offers selections for all budgets. Each piece, regardless of price, reflects the same quality and craftsmanship that has become synonymous with their name. They carry a full selection of diamond engagement and dinner rings, precious gems for men and women, pearls, all types of gold jewelry, as well as designer sterling jewelry and children's better jewelry. Since most of the pieces are created for the store exclusively, everything is backed with the store's assurance of quality. Visit Mon. thru Sat. 10 to 6 or call 682-4653 or 682-GOLD.

After hearing testimony, Whitney explained that since the same board was sitting on the last hearing and had already conducted a site visit, another would not be necessary.

Souran M. and Gail D. DerAnanian, 1 Dean Circle, came before the board to simply request the continued existence of their dwelling, which does not meet minimum setback requirements, but due to information received by the board prior to the hearing, the issue became more complicated.

According to Mrs. DerAnanian, a new plot plan was done at the time she and her husband applied for refinancing of their home, and found that the previous plot plan had been faulty by about eight feet.

Chairman Wesley Whitney began questioning DerAnanian about swimming lessons the board had learned she conducts at her home. DerAnanian answered that she teaches about 30 children a day in small groups for a four to six week period every summer, charging a fee, and has been doing so for the last eight or ten years.

DerAnanian asked what this line of questioning had to do with her setbacks and the continued existence of her home. Whitney commented the board was not in the practice of issuing permits to anyone who is knowingly violating the by-laws, and he was trying to establish whether or not this was such a case—business operations are not allowed in a residential district without ZBA approval.

In other petitions:

Abutters of 20 Fosters Pond Road protested the petition of Frank H. MacMillan, who requested permission to build a garage on the property, which does not have frontage on a public way.

Abbutors contended that MacMillan has never resided in the house, instead renting it out, and there is concern with the possibility of blasting ledge in the land on which the garage is to be built. They also commented the garage would be two and one-half stories high, taking up most of the lot and that junk cars were often kept on the property.

June Bosworth, 348 River Road, asked for permission to convert her single-family residence to a two-family, without making any exterior alterations. The six-room house will simply be divided into two three-room apartments to provide the owners only source of income.

Also requesting such conversion were two Bartlet St. residents. Robert L. and Estelle M. Billings want to convert their home by adding a 20 foot by 24 foot addition to their present home, 13 feet from the lot line. They would also construct a two-car garage under the addition to accommodate those residing in the addition.

Board member Jane Griswold asked why they could not move the addition to come within setbacks, and Billing replied that it may be possible to do so.

Frances M. McCormick, 64 Bartlet St., received abutters blessings and others' condemnations for her proposed conversion. Having lived in this residence for about 10 years, abbutors claimed that she had always been a good neighbor and also, there was more than adequate parking space for additional residents.

Other abbutors feared a change in the character of the neighborhood and the possibility of Mrs. McCormick becoming an absentee landlord. Pat McCormick, the petitioner's son, contended that the building was in bad shape when they purchased it and they refurbished—improving the character of the neighborhood. He also commented that this conversion is financially necessary for their continued residence.

Finally, James J. and Marie F. Cunningham, 12 Arundel St., requested a variance to allow the addition of a family room that will not meet setback requirements. This 14 foot by 14 foot addition would be the least-violating design and would fit into the L-shape of the house.

The house, which was built around 1920, is already in violation of the current side lot requirements but is grandfathered in as approved, and the addition would not come more than three-fifths of a foot closer to the rear lot line than the presently existing structure.

Vacation Mail Tips

"Before leaving on vacation several simple steps can make sure your mail is handled smoothly while you're away," according to Boston Division General Manager/Postmaster Sal Gennaro.

"Ask a neighbor or relative to remove mail and newspapers from your mailbox daily or have mail held at the post office," he recommends. "A written request to hold mail up to 30 days can be given to your letter carrier or submitted at the local post office. If an extended absence is anticipated, a temporary mail forwarding order can be requested."

Gennaro stresses the importance of not letting mail accumulate in a mailbox, saying, "It's a sign even novice burglars can detect."

Other tips include taking a supply of stamps and postal cards and the addresses and ZIP Codes of those to whom you may write. Standard post cards only require 14 cents postage, while letters weighing one ounce or less and oversize post cards need a 22-cent stamp. When travelling abroad, you will have to purchase postage stamps in the country from which you are mailing.

CLOSING AND THE SELLER

If you are about to close the sale of your home, there are steps you should be aware of to make the closing as smooth as possible.

Normally, you and your attorney will be responsible for drawing the new deed and bringing this document to the closing. The purchase of tax stamps may also be necessary. You will need a copy of your most recent tax bill, which should be receipted if it has been paid. If the insurance or mortgage is to be assumed by the new buyer, you will need these payment books, policies, etc.

When the sale involves income, as for rental properties, the seller should bring leases, rent schedules, escrow statements for deposits held and a letter to be sent to tenants notifying them of the ownership change. Of course, you would also bring keys, garage door openers, and the like to the closing.

If you choose an established agency to handle the sale of your home, you'll be sure that all the bases will be covered. Then you can walk out with cash in hand and celebrate.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at THE HOWE AGENCY, 4 Punchard Ave., Andover. Phone: 475-5100. We're here to help.

AN AUGUST RULE

Under the new tax law, if a mortgage or home equity loan was already in place on August 16, 1986, interest on that borrowing continues to be fully deductible as an itemized deduction. If a loan is taken out on a first or second home after August 16, 1986, interest is deductible to the extent that the borrowing does not exceed the purchase price of the property, plus the cost of improvements. Mortgage interest on a debt above those amounts will be deductible if the proceeds are used to pay education expenses or medical bills. However, the new law does not change the rule for deducting points. Although interest on a refinanced mortgage is deductible, even if the proceeds are used for something other than home improvements, points paid to obtain the loan must be written off proportionately over the course of the loan.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

Schruender Real Estate

THE SELLER'S NET SHEET

When you're considering what price to accept for your home, there are two important numbers to consider. The first is the basic sales price. The second (and most important) is the amount you will actually receive from the proceeds at settlement.

Your Realtor will prepare a seller's "net sheet" showing you just what your expenses will be. In addition to the brokerage, there may be local transfer taxes, attorneys' fees, termite inspections or treatment, and perhaps the buyer will ask you to pay some of the loan fees. You and the seller will prorate local real estate taxes, and you may be asked to place funds in escrow for payment of your final water bill. Then you should subtract your mortgage balance, and any other liens against the property that will be paid at settlement. You should also add in a little extra for last minute repairs, especially if you are considering an offer with VA or FHA financing. You and your agent should go over these numbers when you list your home for sale and again as offers come in on the property.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate, consult the professionals at Realty USA / Schruender Real Estate. Please call us at 685-5000, or drop by our offices at 73 Chickering Road, North Andover.

"I Know Property Values, That's Why I Chose To Live In The Villages Of Windham."

THERESA STEELE/REALTOR, BROKER

In a relatively short span of time, Theresa Steele has brought her realty firm to prominence in the Southern New Hampshire market. Her new office building is a distinctive landmark on Rt. 28. Theresa recently purchased a new Villages of Windham condominium

When a successful REALTOR like Theresa Steele makes a home buying decision, you know it's a smart move. "The location is marvelously convenient, but the Villages themselves are wonderfully secluded," says Theresa. "My new home leaves nothing to be desired in design or appointments," notes Theresa, "and the prospects for value appreciation are excellent. I have no doubts about the Villages," concludes Theresa. "it's a Realtors dream." Choose from first floor master bedroom or townhouse style design.

Landmass offers a program allowing ample time for buyers to sell their old home.

Prices from $195,000.

ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

Substitute Teachers Work To Make School System Better

By Lewis C. Howe

In an effort to settle contract grievances and to improve their standing within the town school system, Andover substitute teachers formed the Associate Teachers Organization of Andover (ATO) during the 1986-87 academic year.

"I was impressed with their desire to make the school system better," said Dr. Kenneth Seifert, Superintendent of Schools, "and to go beyond just asking for a wage and benefits increase."

Representatives for the substitutes worked with Seifert and Mary Lyman, Director of Personnel for the Town of Andover, to negotiate a seniority-based compensation system for part-time educators.

"We sat down with six of the substitutes who had been in the system for a long period of time," Lyman recalled. "We were able to brainstorm a plan to distinguish between transient substitutes and those who had put in years of dedication and service."

The result, Lyman said, was a wage scale to reward substitute teachers who accept more assignments and involve themselves in the school system. Returning substitutes who work a total of 40 days or more this year were reclassified as "Veteran Substitutes," and paid a rate of $55 per day.

Part-time instructors working 30 days or more are paid at a rate of $45 per day. Both are improvements over the flat $40 wages previously awarded to substitutes, regardless of experience or days worked.

The new plan also has a carry-over provision, so that associate teachers completing their first year in Andover will also be awarded "Veteran" status and compensation next year, should they stay on.

This, Lyman said, allows the teachers to project their income for the next year, so they can decide whether it is financially desirable to remain in town. Lyman said she believes "a large number of substitutes" will return, thanks to the revamped system.

The settlement also calls for a change in title— from "substitute" teacher to "associate" teacher. This is more than a matter of semantics, Seifert said, as it gives the instructors a "better frame of mind" in approaching their work.

"A 'substitute' tends to be viewed as someone less than whole who fills in," the superintendent explained, "while an 'associate' is someone who takes a great deal of pride in his or her work."

The ATO also installed a series of new programs to make substitutes a more integral part of the school system. This, Lyman said, has increased morale among the part-time ranks.

The group formulated plans for a series of workshops with educational professionals to enhance teaching skills, the establishment of an Open House to welcome new teachers into the system, and the development of a substitute handbook which would detail the rules for each school in the system.

Programs such as the Open House, Lyman commented, "make people feel more a part of the system." She said new substitutes can be made to feel "either familiar with or alien to" a school system, and the orientation program serves to "make life easier" for all concerned.

An organization for substitutes "to pool ideas" also helps the teachers develop better work practices, Seifert said. For example, interaction between substitutes result in a better system of discipline. "Sometimes, as we know, it can be open season on a substitute when the regular teacher is away," he commented.

The group also serves as a line of communication between substitute teachers and the administration to correct any problems which may occur during the school year.

Lyman stated the ATO meetings had been beneficial toward gaining feedback from substitutes on how they view the school system. She also praised the "energy and emotional involvement" of the organization's members. "It's a good system," Lyman said, "we've had a very favorable response from them."

The Associate Teacher's Organization sees its goal as allowing substitutes to draw on their own educational background and experience, in order to better serve as educational professionals in the classroom. They also wish to continue with their training so they may handle classroom situations in a more professional manner.

Members of the ATO say substitute teaching can offer an alternative for professional people who are looking for a part-time job. Many retired teachers have come back as substitutes, and it is also an option for people planning career changes. With a predicted future teacher shortage, the group believes it will be able to encourage professionals to consider teaching as a profession.
